WARREN COUNTY

Willis Michael Sullivan Jr. of Youngsville, who was killed in Vietnam on June 16, was buried with full military honors in Youngsville Cemetery. The flag which draped his coffin was presented to his parents. Page B-1.

Larry Bailey, a Spartansburg Marine, was among those killed in the collision of two helicopters at Camp Lejeune, N.C., on Friday. His parents first were told he was injured, but as they prepared to drive to North Carolina to visit him, they were notified of his death. Page B-1.

PENNSYLVANIA

A top-level meeting of Republican forces was held in Harrisburg last night in an attempt to get the stalled tax program on the road. Governor Shafer, plagued with the thought that there might not be enough votes to carry it through the House, debated a plan of action with top GOP leaders in the General Assembly. Page One.

SUMMIT MEETING

President Johnson and Soviet Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin, after the completion of their two days of talks, issued non-committal reports on any progress that may have been made. However, both the President and Kosygin described the 4 1/2-hour meeting yesterday as "useful," and indicated an inconclusive agreement to keep in touch through their diplomats "and also directly." In the view of officials of both countries, Kosygin, like Johnson, valued the opportunity to pierce the bureaucratic processes of both nations and to directly evaluate both the resolve and the opinions of the other man. Page One.

The citizens of Glassboro had a brief exposure to Texas-style diplomacy as they gathered to watch the activity near the mansion meeting place. For one thing, several outdoor barbecues had been set up on the back lawn to broil lamb chops, part of the luncheon menu. However, White House aides stressed that this definitely was not a Texas-style barbecue.

While the two principals and their staffs talked in a recently air-conditioned meeting room in the mansion, Mrs. Johnson, her daughter Lynda, and Mrs. Richard J. Hughes, the New Jersey governor's wife, entertained Kosygin's daughter at the Governor's summer home on the Jersey shore.

Peking greeted the summit talks with bitter condemnation. An official Communist Chinese news agency charged that the Soviet leader was "getting near the conclusion of a vicious deal with Johnson" that would be directed "first and foremost" against Peking.

THE NATION

Congress, with the Senate out of its week-long debate over and subsequent censure of Sen. Thomas Dodd of Connecticut, gets back to business. That includes the Teachers Corps and the national Debt limit. Page A-5.

THE WORLD

In the Vietnam war, the death toll of North Vietnamese in a battle near Dakto rose to 106 after earlier reports of only 10 confirmed dead. The paratroopers who lost more than half of their men in the ambush were still stunned by the suddenness of it all. Page One.

All the leading newspapers in the Soviet Union have printed a review by the Soviet Communist Party of its 50 turbulent years in power. The theses, approved by the central committee at a two-day meeting last week, cast no new light on some dark corners of Soviet history and advanced no new policies. Page A-5.

SPORTS

Skip Furlow, who won the pole position by winning the first 75 laps at Erie last weekend, took it all at Stateline Speedway Saturday night in the finale of the 150-lap segment race. Squirt Johns took the late model feature. At Erie last night, John Whitehead crossed the finish line first in the New Car feature and Youngsville's Ronnie Blackmer added another victory in the main event for Sportsmen. Page A-9.

The Warren Beverage Baseball Club swept four games in the Glenwood League over the weekend to regain first place in the loop by one-half game over Ferraro Ford. The Beveragemen routed Koehler's Beer here Saturday, 20-1 and 10-4, then whipped Bihler Tires in a pair at West Springfield yesterday, 5-0 and 5-1. Page A-7.

Gardner Dickinson held on to win the Cleveland Open Golf Tournament yesterday, his first victory on the pro tour in five years. Dickinson carded a final even-par 70 for a 271 total, four strokes better than Miller Barber and Homero Blancas. Page A-8.

NEARLY WIPED OUT

Company of Paratroopers Still Stunned by Battle

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON — The known death toll of North Vietnamese in the battle in the Central Highlands last Thursday in which an American paratrooper company was virtually wiped out was put at 10 by a military spokesman yesterday.

At the same time American losses were increased from 76 to 80 dead and from 25 to 34 wounded. One company of the 173d Airborne Brigade of about 150 men was said to have received almost all of the casualties.

The spokesman would not comment on the discrepancy between the official enemy body count and the estimated figure of 450 enemy dead announced by the brigade Saturday.

Count Reaches 106

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. Command reported today a sizable increase in the number of North Vietnamese troops killed in action last Thursday in which a company of American paratroopers was virtually wiped out. U.S. Headquarters said latest reports showed 106 North Vietnamese were killed in the fighting.

And while more North Vietnamese bodies will undoubtedly come to light, either in hastily dug graves or in the thick tangle of bamboo, scrub and timber in which the battle was fought, informed sources regard it as unlikely that the number dead was larger than that of the Americans.

It appeared that the company had been ambushed, disorganized and quickly overrun, and that the North Vietnamese troops had then murdered whatever wounded survivors they could find before dispersing.

The savage encounter in Kontum Province, 280 miles northwest of Saigon, raised new anxiety about the possibility of a North Vietnamese offensive during the monsoon season.

Questions have also been raised as to the effectiveness of American small-unit tactics in seeking out North Vietnamese units in densely forested country in which there are few clearings suitable for use as helicopter landing zones.

The company was advancing in hope of making contact with North Vietnamese units known to be in the area. According to plan, it would have formed a strong defensive perimeter once the first shots of the engagement were fired and called in heavy air strikes and artillery fire on the enemy. At the same time reinforcements would have been rushed in by helicopter.

However, the carefully planned attack by a larger force of seasoned enemy troops armed with automatic rifles, machine guns and grenades — instead of lightly armed guerrillas — appeared to have overrun the company, particularly its two forward platoons, before the counterattack could take effect.

'Very Useful' Meetings Produce Little

By MAX FRANKEL

GLASSBORO — President Johnson and Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin ended their two-day conference yesterday with an agreement to keep in touch, but gave no hint that they had succeeded in narrowing their differences over the Middle East and Vietnam.

Emerging from their second meeting on the campus of Glassboro State College, President Johnson said that he and the Soviet leader had decided to keep "in good communication" through their aides, and "also directly."

The President and Premier Kosygin, looking solemn as they stood before massed microphones and television cameras, described their meeting, which had lasted four and a half hours, as useful.

Each suggested that they felt it was important to compare their divergent views on such subjects as the Middle East, the war in Vietnam and arms control.

In distinct contrast, however, to their report at the end of the first meeting on Friday, which had lasted five and one-half hours, they did not identify these subjects as the topic of their meeting. Nor did Johnson repeat his first-day statement that they had agreed upon the importance of "now" of reaching international agreement on a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

Whereas Johnson at least remarked that he had an "improved understanding" of the Soviet stand on major issues, Kosygin remarked only that "compare" positions was useful in the view of "all sides."

On his return to Washington, the President delivered his own brief report on the meeting—apparently along the lines that he had proposed to Kosygin.

He confirmed that the two nations had decidedly different views of the Middle East and Vietnam situations. But it was "a long way from total difference," on the Middle East, he said, because at least they agreed that every state had a right to live. Some Arab countries have never accepted that view.

On Vietnam, Johnson said that while the area of agreement was plainly small he had welcomed the opportunity to make it "very clear that we will match and outmatch any step to peace."

He said it should be clear that better understanding does not automatically produce greater agreement but at least raised the hope that through "new knowledge of each other" there may gradually emerge "small areas" of common interest which could eventually produce accord.

He said the two days of talks had clearly made the world a little smaller "and also a little less dangerous."

THE PRICE OF PEACE

Russia Demands Viet Withdrawal

By DREW MIDDLETON

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS — Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin last night demanded the withdrawal of United States troops from Vietnam as the price of improvement of Soviet-American relations.

The Soviet premier, returning from his meeting with President Johnson at Glassboro, N.J., said at news conference here that his government rejected the American package proposal on peace in the Middle East and asserted that the first step must be the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Arab states to positions behind the armistice lines of 1949.

The U.N., the Premier declared, will be "duty-bound" to adopt decisions calling for the withdrawal of troops. The Security Council then would implement these decisions and, if Israel did not comply, "sanctions could be applied," he declared.

The Premier answered 27 questions with patience and without hesitation during the news conference, which began at 8:04 p.m. EDT. The conference was attended by more than 300 reporters and cameramen.

Kosygin saved his presentation of Soviet policy for this audience. He said little of substance to newsmen before leaving Glassboro.

The main points made by the Premier in a statement he read to the conference and in reply to questions were the following:

—The "first step" toward an improvement in Soviet-American relations is an end to United States "aggression" in that war and withdrawal from the country. This could lead to a discussion on improving economic and cultural ties and technological exchanges and the resolution of "important political issues" between the two countries.

—Mr. Johnson believes that it is important to consider all questions in the Middle East but "we believe that first and foremost" there must be the immediate withdrawal of Israeli forces. Consideration of a "whole package" of issues will delay action and risk a recurrence of the war.

—Both the U.S. and the Soviet Union believe it important "to achieve understanding" on the conclusion of an international treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

—The question of Communist

Tax Plan Subject Of Meet

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer met with House Republican leaders last night in an effort to get his stalled $267 million tax program moving again.

The meeting was called at the governor's residence at Indian-town Gap after the Republican leadership backed away from a roll-call vote on the tax package last Friday because they lacked the votes to pass it.

After the retreat, the GOP leaders said they would make an attempt this week to pass at least 12 of the 13 bills in the administration's revised tax package. They need 102 votes to do it.

The Republicans hold 102 seats in the House, but two GOP legislators are out because of illness and at least six others are opposed to the governor's proposals.

Minority Democrats say their opposition to the program is solid.

Both the House and the Senate are scheduled to reconvene at 3 p.m. today.

House Republicans are to caucus at 1 p.m. to renew efforts to win over defectors.

The GOP holdouts apparently have been successful in their efforts to kill a proposed 1-cent-per-12-ounce tax on soft drinks that would have given the state an estimated $24 million a year in additional revenue.

Among the 12 remaining administration proposals were tax increases on cigarettes, beer and liquor, and boosts in the inheritance and business taxes.

Some GOP legislators were calling for more cuts in Shafer's proposed $1,791 billion state budget to reduce the need for additional tax revenue. The governor, however, maintained the budget already was cut to the bone.

The Senate was expected to act this week on $244.2 million. See ASSEMBLY, Page A-2

SPARTANSBURG MARINE KILLED IN COPTER CRASH

Lance Corporal Larry J. Bailey of RD3, Spartansburg, a 1965 graduate of Corry Area High School, died in this helicopter crash at Camp Lejeune, N.C., on Friday. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bailey, were notified Saturday by the Rev. Martin Klingensmith of Cobbs Corners Community Church, which the 20-year-old Marine attended when home. The family earlier had been told their son was wounded, and they were preparing to drive to North Carolina to see him when they were notified of his death. Story on Page B-1.

OBITUARIES

Westmoreland Proud of Paratroopers

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

DAKTO, South Vietnam—Gen. William C. Westmoreland flew to his stunned and embattled base camp yesterday and told nearly 60 exhausted paratroopers that they had won "one of the toughest battles Americans have fought in the history of Vietnam."

"You took on an estimated enemy sized force of 500 to 800 men and kicked the hell out of them," said the general, the senior American commander in Vietnam.

The general made his remarks three days after North Vietnamese troops had ambushed units of the 173rd Airborne Brigade in a savage battle on a slope only four miles from the main base camp.

"The NVA (North Vietnamese Army) were in high spirits before they met you," the general told the paratroopers. "Now they're flat on their tails."

Westmoreland said more than 400 North Vietnamese troops had been killed in the battles. His headquarters in Saigon, however, said last night that only 10 enemy bodies had been found. A spokesman said 80 U.S. paratroopers had been killed and 34 wounded.

Westmoreland arrived at the brigade base camp about 260 miles north northeast of Saigon at 2:30 in the afternoon and remained for about an hour. He sat on the hood of a jeep as he talked to the paratroopers, who had taken off their steel helmets and gathered informally around him.

"I'm proud of you men," the general said.

The 173rd Airborne Brigade's commander, Brig. Gen. John R. Deane, sat in his tent and discussed the battle.

"We killed one hell of a lot of them," the 49-year-old Westmoreland said.

Meeting

Neither side had really anticipated any closing of the gap of their different analyses and prescriptions for lasting peace in the Middle East and Southeast Asia, and American officials cautioned against excessive interpretation either of the affability that both leaders showed after their first session or the relative restraint that they displayed this evening.

In the view of officials from both countries, Kosygin, like

Johnson, valued the opportunity to pierce the bureaucracies of their governments and to hear both the resolve and the opinions of the other man directly.

However the Russians had been expected to be somewhat uneasy about ostentatious embrace by the United States, especially in view of the war in Vietnam in which the United States is directly involved while the Soviet Union is indirectly supporting the North Vietnamese forces.

China's giving nuclear weapons to Arab countries has not arisen but the Soviet Union is against the export of nuclear weapons and against all tests by nuclear powers. "and China is a nuclear power."

The shipment of Soviet weapons to the United Arab Republic, Syria and Jordan to replace those lost in the war with Israel is a "question for the Arabs and the Soviet Union" and can be considered with other questions once Israeli forces are withdrawn.

Kosygin

Discussions on armaments between the two countries should concentrate on the "entire complex of disarmament questions" rather than on the problem of an antiballistic missile defensive system. The money that might be saved if plans for an antiballistic missile system were scrapped might be "used to build an offensive missile system."

"The world's progressive forces and all nations have condemned the war in Vietnam," Kosygin asserted, "but the United States continues its aggression against the Vietnamese people."

This "bitter struggle" by the Vietnamese will not end until the "aggressors leave Vietnam." All "progressive peoples" he said, must help the Vietnamese in their just struggle.

Throughout Kosygin's comments on the Vietnam war, the emphasis was on U.S. withdrawal rather than simply an end of American bombing of North Vietnam. This was demanded, however, in his formal statement of his meeting with the President.

Much of what the Premier said was similar to earlier statements on the same topics.

Trying Again

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP) — Last week was a busy one for William Schwartz, 90. He obtained a final divorce order against his wife and then took as his bride 82-year-old Hester Visser. They honeymooned at the place they met—Silver Crown Old People's Home.

Assembly

In stop-gap appropriations to meet state expenses after the current fiscal year ends June 30.

If the stop-gaps clear both chambers, the legislature will have two months to wrestle with the budget and the tax program making any cuts and revisions it might want to make.

Battle

In other actions, 40 American servicemen were wounded Saturday when the enemy loosed 100 rounds of 82-mm. mortar fire on the airfield at Da Nang in Binhduong Province northeast of Saigon. Damage to aircraft was described as moderate.

In Anxuyen Province, the southernmost in the country, a Navy swift boat was sunk by enemy recoilless rifle and small arms fire while on patrol near the mouth of Ganhiao River. The six-man crew was rescued. One man suffered minor injuries.

Glassboro Stays Calm During Meet

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

GLASSBORO — With a determined refusal to capitalize on its sudden fame Glassboro went to church yesterday and then turned out, picnic-like to welcome its second world summit conference in three days.

Long before the crowd began to fill Whitney street, next to Holly Bush, the site of the meeting, the Pitman-Glassboro Junior Chamber of Commerce began to uncrate cans of soft drink that they would sell.

"We'll take the money from this to set up a plaque or something," said Scott Anderson, who like the other Jagrees wore a red vest and green belt hat.

"On Friday, the people were complaining they couldn't get anything to drink here," he explained.

Like many of its Gloucester County neighbors, Glassboro bans the sale of alcoholic beverages on Sunday, and the borough council refused to ease the ban because of the summit.

Louis Bilancio, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said he supposed Glassboro might enjoy long-term economic benefit from its new eminence, but that was not what concerned him.

"Our job now," he said, "is to make this place as agreeable as possible for the meeting."

ASKS FOR 'ENTIRELY NEW LOOK' AT NEW ORLEANS PROBE

Garrison's Aide Has 'Misgivings' in Case

BY ROBERT E. DALLOS
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — District Attorney Jim Garrison's chief aide in the New Orleans investigation into the assassination of President Kennedy, who has "grave misgivings" about the inquiry, will ask the District Attorney to take "an entirely new look at the whole matter."

The aide, William H. Gurvich, was interviewed here last night a few hours before he left for New Orleans. He said his misgivings concerned "the behavior of certain people in the District Attorney's office and the criminal procedures employed in this case."

In the last few weeks several key witnesses in the investigation have said they were offered concessions for their testimony.

"When I return to New Orleans I expect to confront Mr. Garrison as a gentleman, as a friend, and as his chief aide," Gurvich said. "I will thoroughly explain my feelings to him and ask him to take an entirely new look at the whole matter. The results of this meeting will determine my status as a member of his staff."

Gurvich declined to list his specific misgivings but said he "would like to see more extensive and thorough searches made in the gathering of evidence to clarify questions that develop."

"Up until now this standard and professional method of criminal investigation was not always used in all phases of this investigation," he said.

Garrison contends that his investigation uncovered a conspiracy to kill President Kennedy that originated in New Orleans. Clay L. Shaw, a 54-year-old retired businessman, has been bound over for trial after a preliminary hearing at which Garrison alleged that Shaw, Lee Harvey Oswald and the late David W. Ferrie had plotted to shoot Kennedy. The Warren Commission concluded that Oswald was the lone assassin.

Gurvich said he had "no reason to believe that District Attorney Garrison does not believe that there was a conspiracy to assassinate President Kennedy hatched in New Orleans."

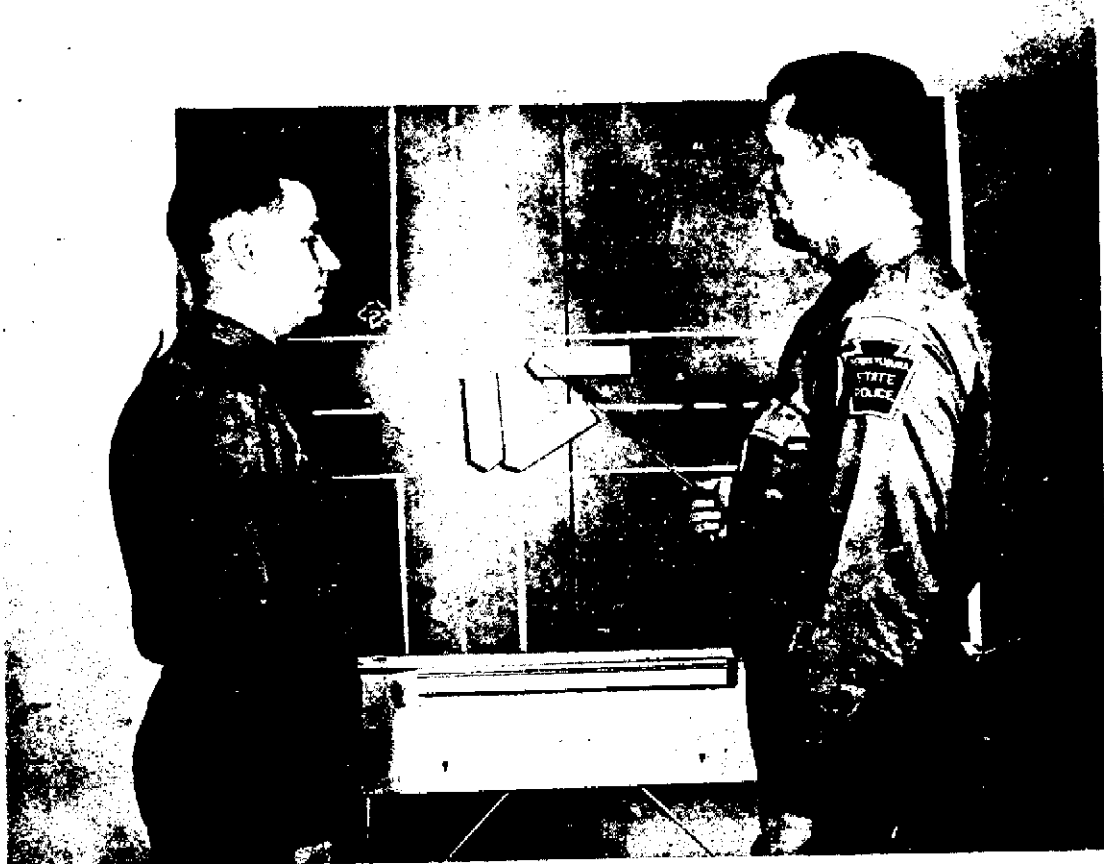

"He is sincere in his belief," Gurvich said.

Gurvich, 41, was reported to have told Sen. Robert F. Kennedy during a meeting on June 8 that the Garrison investigation "had no basis in fact." He declined to comment on the substance of their talk but said:

"We talked about the investigation. What else was there of interest between me from New Orleans and Robert Kennedy, the brother of John Kennedy?"

Gurvich said he had "no comment" on whether he had told the senator the Garrison investigation was a hoax or had no basis in fact.

State Police on July 6. Speaker at the graduation ceremony will be Governor Raymond P. Shafer. Shaw is 26 years old and a graduate of Eisenhower High School. He spent four years in the service.

Interstate Roads Termed Hazardous

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The United States' newest interstate highways have many of the same roadside hazards of older highways despite federal urging to states to eliminate them in new construction, a House subcommittee has found.

Subcommittee investigators found faulty and unnecessary guard rails, poorly constructed median barriers, bridge and overpass construction faults, badly placed signs, inadequate drainage systems and steep roadside slopes—all of which can be fatal to the motorist who strays off the road at high speed.

The hazards were found on the most recently completed links of the interstate highway system in nine states, but investigators said they were "representative" of construction faults in new projects in all states.

Charles W. Prisk, a deputy director of the Office of Traffic Operations for the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, said all the projects have been open to traffic in the last year and that one had been opened in February.

Prisk, who helped the public works subcommittee with its investigation, said that, in many cases, the hazards could have been eliminated during construction with little extra cost.

For example, he said, near

Cleveland he found that a span of guard rail was fastened to anchor posts with bolts, but that washers had been left off the bolts.

The washers, he explained, prevent the guard rail from snapping off the posts when it is struck by a vehicle, thus preventing the vehicle from hitting the anchor posts or other objects of the roadway.

The washers cost about 20 cents each, as compared to the cost of the guard rail which is about $3 a foot. The cost of the highway ranges from $1 million to $30 million a mile, he said.

John S. Camigliano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Camigliano 107 Jefferson ave., recently received his Master of Arts degree from Western Reserve University. His work was in the field of American history.

A 1958 graduate of Warren Area High School, Camigliano attended Oberlin College, where he was graduated in 1962. After teaching for four years in the Cleveland, Ohio school system, he took the past year off to complete his work toward his master's degree.

He is married to the former Alice Jean Baker, of Fairview, Pennsylvania, a home economics teacher.

Both will teach this fall in the Warren County School District. They reside at 115 Canton st., Warren.

State Police Investigate 2 Crashes

Minor injuries and considerable damage resulted in two accidents over the weekend, according to state police, at the local substation.

A one-car accident occurred Saturday at 9 p.m. six miles north of Warren on Route 62 causing an estimated damage of $500 to the automobile and sending its operator to Warren General Hospital for treatment of a laceration of the right eye.

Injured was Ronald Hansen, 19, of 58 Pleasant drive, when he lost control of his car, traveling south on 62. The vehicle crossed the highway and rolled over. According to Trooper Barnes, who investigated the accident, the vehicle was traveling at an excessive rate of speed when the mishap occurred.

Hansen was taken to the Warren General Hospital by Trooper Barnes. He was treated and released.

Another accident at 2:35 p.m. yesterday caused $750 damage to the two cars involved and sent a passenger in one vehicle to the Titusville General Hospital with bruises on his legs and arms, police said.

The accident occurred on Legislative Route 61001, the Enterprise - Titusville road, when a car driven by Lawrence Price, 54, of RD 2, Titusville, traveling west, was struck by a car operated by Robert F. Goodwill, 39, of 528 Mailer st., Titusville.

Ruth K. Goodwill, 38, a passenger in the Goodwill car was taken to the Titusville General Hospital, where she was treated and released.

According to Trooper DeSimone, of the local substation, estimated damage to the Price car was $350, while damage to the Goodwill vehicle was estimated at $400.

The Medicare Mess

Members of the medical profession have been working closely with Congress and the appropriate bodies to take the kinks out of Medicare. Some of the kinks are a growing snarl of red tape.

The head of the AMA, in testifying before a congressional committee, has recommended that government drop out of the administration of Part B of Medicare which is the $3 a month voluntary insurance phase of the act. He suggested that social security payments be increased so the beneficiaries can purchase their own private voluntary health insurance coverage. He pointed out that Part B has involved the federal government itself in "...the practice of medicine through rules, regulations and statistical data requirements." Moreover, "the patient is dissatisfied because he finds he is getting less than he expected, he experiences delays in being reimbursed, and he can't comprehend the unfamiliar... combination that is trying to take care of him. ... The Congress... is additionally concerned because it has created an open-ended program with rising and perhaps uncontrollable costs."

The AMA spokesman then raised a fundamental question about Medicare as a whole. He said it covers millions of people who can afford to finance their own health care, and centralizes direction of the program in Washington rather than permitting the flexibility and trial-and-error of health care programs administered by the states. He added, "Available tax funds should be used to give maximum health care to those who need help. Expenditures of public funds on those who do not need help limits the resources available to those who do need it."

Try It On the Youngsters

There is increasing comment in the newspapers on the growing crime wave across the nation. You read of pitched battles of various groups with police in the streets or on college campuses.

It is now reported that children in the 11 to 16 age group commit half of all property offenses, and of all criminals arrested the most frequent age is 15.

According to an AP dispatch from Los Angeles, a judge has recommended for women an arsenal ranging from a six-inch hatpin to a deringer for use in protecting their lives and virtue. Of course, you can't carry them concealed she said. She felt a hatpin would not be construed as a concealed weapon. In the meantime, to combat the alarming rise in teenage crime, the President is urging federal and local authorities to take action.

While all this is going on, it is time for parents to take their children in hand and begin to teach them to keep their hands off other people and other people's property. This simple little admonition could eventually save untold suffering and grief for children, parents and the public.

Abortion Reform Gains

The American Medical Association's decision to favor the liberalization of state abortion laws not only reversed a 96-year-old policy, but clearly indicated the rapidly developing temper of the times. California, Colorado and North Carolina have modified their statutes on the subject this year and nineteen other states are studying the matter.

The new policy statement of the A.M.A. follows the model code of the American Law Institute. It would approve therapeutic abortions to safeguard the life or health of the mother; to prevent the birth of a child with a physical or mental defect; or to terminate a pregnancy resulting from rape or incest.

This is essentially the same proposal that the New York Legislature, under heavy pressure from the Roman Catholic hierarchy, kept bottled up in committee and refused even to allow to come to a vote. As a result the heavy toll of needless suffering by panic-stricken young mothers continues unabated here. It is time to end it. —NYT

Household Hazard Not Yet Eliminated

Old ice-boxes or refrigerators, left in basement or shed, are still death traps for children. Several tragedies with them have occurred recently.

Castoff refrigerators aren't easily discarded when replaced by newer models, especially in outlying areas. City folks call the junk man or second-hand man to get rid of them. Rural people often put them in cellar, barn, or shed, or use them as an auxiliary storage facility.

And it's here that tragedy lurks. Little children—boys especially—like to play hide and seek, or act out the mystery or spy thriller they have seen on television. They love to crawl into closets, chests, boxes, or refrigerators. And if these have lids or old-style doors without safety catches, the youngster risks being smothered to death. Get rid of any around your premises. At least remove the lid or door so your children and their playmates can crawl out as easily as they got in.—Grit.

Harlem Is As Old As Sin

Harlem is a torture. It's a brick jungle. I stand on the corner of 125th and Seventh as I did 35 years ago. We didn't have the gray slant of rain then. There was a moon over the clotheslines. And gin. And watermelon laughter. The odor of frying chicken. And the sound of a bluesy piano.

We had relatives on East 122nd — the Smiths and the Daleys. The Negroes were in a vise of flats between 110th St. and Sugar Hill. By day, they worked the elevators in the downtown skyscrapers. They pushed the brooms, rolled the trash cans, hefted the pianos, and ran the numbers. On hot nights, they rolled the dice, did the timepieces, giggled in pain, and sang the psalms. All gone. All of it. Misery has been traded for despair. The brownstones are older. The rats are bigger. The halls are smellier. The music comes from a white man's jukebox. Harlem has spilled across the river to Brooklyn, north to the Bronx, and down the west side of Central Park. The daily belt of heroin is delivered in balloons floating from a bicycle. When a detective approaches, the balloons are snipped with scissors. The men speak of a long hot summer, but they surrendered long ago. They got married quick and easy, and left their pregnant women. The wives control Harlem. They work hard, buy the food, bring the children up, and nourish their courage in silence.

Harlem is a matriarchy. The politicians cull the votes; the women hold the pocketbook. The Negro children in Harlem do not know they are Negroes until the age of four or five. When Caucasian kids are asking: "Where did I come from?" the colored youngsters are saying: "A boy called me a Nigger. What's that?" There are some new housing developments. Big ones. They too will sink to the common level. The gray rat will learn to work an automatic elevator. What Harlem requires is not industrial equality. It's social acceptance. The Negro can make it at the White House, but he can't make it around the corner to a Fifth Avenue apartment.

His Senators talk a good game. But nothing good happens. It has become fashionable to put one Negro in every TV show; one Negro in a commercial; one Negro at the U.N.; one Negro on the Supreme Court. This is the decade of the One Negro. But it puts no bacon in the frying pan in Harlem. It doesn't put a pair of sneakers on black feet. Neither do flying bottles and bullets. This country is still white Protestant. It pits 90 percent against 10 percent. The 10 percent cannot win, and they cannot afford the luxury of defeat. They listen to the idealistic words of allens—Adam Clayton Powell, Robert F. Kennedy, Jacob Javits—and they say: "They sure talk good." And they do.

But you can't talk rent. The politicians talk the crimes of Mississippi and Alabama, and maybe they can be corrected with voter registration. But Harlem is more sophisticated and in deeper pain. It needs heroin in its bubble gum. Thirty five years ago, Bojangles Robinson and Florence Walton and Ethel Waters and the best Negro doctors lived on Sugar Hill. They had their own snob set, just as Tuxedo Junction had its own, complete with colored servants. The rich Irish in Washington Heights had Gaelic backstairs maids, Italian priests in Brooklyn employed Neapolitan cooks. Only the Jews refused to hire Jews as servants.

Man is cannibalistic. He feeds off his own. Negro cops travel in pairs in Harlem. They are roof targets. The summer becomes warmer, waves of heat shimmer from tar streets. At night, Harlem makes love on fire escapes and in cellars as though it were the last free ride to the moon.

A deck of cigarettes may cost more. Tears are less satisfying. Love is just one more promise not intended to be kept. And who cares if little ones pop up in bed to watch?

Harlem is as old as sin. And I'm 35 years older too. The place gets darker as my hair becomes whiter. A short chubby man moves over to me and murmurs politely: "We don't need your slumming. Nobody here wants you." I hail a taxi. "Are you sure?" I said. "That anybody wants you?"...

Poverty And Marriage

The day is coming when you, a young married couple, will be able to "take a pink pill if you want a girl, a blue pill if you want a boy, and a white pill if you want neither." Almost surely, this freedom of choice will increase the proportion of boy babies and thereby increase the number of males eligible for marriage at all ages.

This, in turn, will eliminate the shortage of middle-aged eligible males and as a result, no longer will so many millions of older widows and divorcees be forced to remain without male companionship for 10 or 20 or even more years. Our whole society will be healthier and happier.

This was one of the cheerful prospects outlined by Dr. Paul C. Glick, a chief population expert for the U.S. Bureau of Census and president of the Population Association of America, at the association's annual meeting in Cincinnati a short while ago. "Today's deficit of middle-aged men who are eligible to marry could be reduced, eliminated or even changed to a surplus," Glick explained when I queried him in Washington on this forecast. "In view of the successful experiments in animal husbandry to control sex in cattle, it is reasonable to expect progress in applied genetics to control the sequence of children by sex."

The Census Bureau is now beginning a pioneering, historic study of marriage in the U.S. to obtain facts for the Office of Economic Opportunity on the relationship between poverty and marriage problems. Data from a special sample of 30,000 households was collected in March and April. The results will not be known for at least a year, but when available, we will have for the first time answers to such questions as:

Does poverty keep men from every marrying or cause men to end their first marriage in divorce or cause them not to attempt remarriage after experiencing divorce once or twice?

How does a change in a man's income level effect his marriage status? Do relatively poor men have relatively permanent marriages despite their poverty? If they have demonstrated steadiness in such other respects as having graduated from high school or postponed marriage until a mature age?

How can facts on rates of first marriage, dissolution of marriage and remarriage be turned into tools to improve the selection of mates, to make the work of marriage counselors more scientific and to advance the permanence of marriage?

When the statistics are released, I can foresee an avalanche of articles in newspapers and popular magazines translating the findings into "how to" advice. I can foresee tracts and treatises using the statistics to urge an upheaval in U.S. marriage patterns.

As one illustration, the electronic computer already is being used by some commercial enterprises to help unmarried persons find partners with whom would like to have dates. Glick believes that the census findings will speed this process of "judicious mate selection" and that it will go beyond this to help husbands and wives maintain "an optimum relationship after marriage," he suggests that the term "marriage quotient" will come into usage. If you are already married, your marriage quotient would be the probability revealed in the tables that married couples similar to yours are remaining married "until death do ye part." Or if you are single, widowed or divorced, the tables would show which kind of partner would give you the highest quotient.

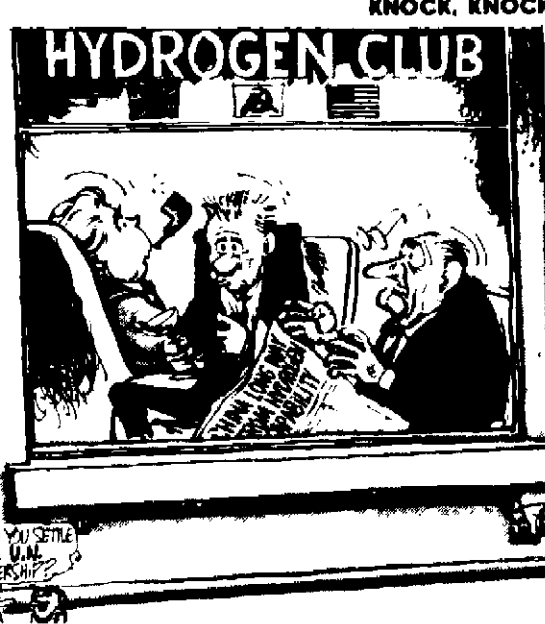

As another illustration, the statistics would be of enormous help to professional marriage counselors. Armed with tables showing the probabilities of permanent marriage under various circumstances, says Glick, "marriage counselors could deal with the problems of prevention, cure and rehabilitation in the marriage field with more nearly the degree of confidence that physicians, surgeons and psychiatrists deal with problems in the medical field."

The central objective of the research is to shed light on the tie between poverty and early marriage, broken marriage or the difficulty in becoming married. But the facts to be uncovered will also help marriage become more selective and will help minimize separation and divorce. The contribution will be toward permanence of marriage—and that is the very foundation of our society.

KNOCK, KNOCK...

PEARSON & ANDERSON

Tackle Papandreou Release

WASHINGTON—The birthplace of democracy, Greece, still has more than 6,000 political prisoners in jail or on the Island of Yourea. The two most famous prisoners are George Papandreou, 80-year-old ex-prime minister, and Andreas Papandreou, his son, who gave up a full professorship of economics at the University of California to go back to Greece and serve in his father's cabinet.

The two Papandreous made the mistake of reforming Greece's tax system, which favored the big ship owners and the wealthy, promoting free public school education; and trying to change the army's caste system whereby only the aristocracy can serve as officers. As a result they now find themselves in jail, kept there by the current "government of the colonels."

When Margaret Papandreou, born in Illinois, studied at the University of Minnesota where she met her professor husband, she roomed with a girl whose husband is now a prominent Los Angeles attorney, James Schwartz. The other day Schwartz undertook to try to get Andreas Papandreou out of jail. He approached the most famous lawyer in Southern California, ex-Gov. Pat Brown.

"I've got a couple of clients in Greece who need a good lawyer," Schwartz said, "but I don't know that they can afford to pay anything."

"Who said anything about a fee?" replied Brown.

Thus began the arrangements by which Brown and Schwartz flew to Athens to undertake the release of Greece's No. 1 political prisoners.

In Athens they were met by a representative of the foreign office, who asked whom they wanted to see.

"We don't want to see anyone at the bottom," replied Brown.

Whereupon they met with Prime Minister Constantine Kollas, then with Minister of Interior and Security Gen. Stylianos Patacos, both very courteous, both worried about American reaction to their dictatorship, but both very firm about political prisoners.

Brown argued that Andreas Papandreou was not a communist, and that Greece would make a mistake if it called a man a communist simply because he disagreed with its government. "Papandreou is well known and well liked in the United States," said Brown. "He had moderate views both at the University of Minnesota and at the University of California. If he had been a communist, we would know it. Greece and the United States have had good relations in the past," argued Brown, "and it would be helpful to this regime if you let Andreas return to teach in America."

At one point Minister of Interior Patacos, a former tank commander now in charge of Police, remonstrated that the new regime had stopped killing. "I'm a very Christian man," he said. "There have been some killings, but they were by trigger-happy young men. I regret this."

The Greek officials finally replied that Greek courts were impartial and that Andreas would get a fair trial.

But during the conversation Brown noticed a man sitting in the rear and asked who he was. "That's the chief justice of the Greek supreme court," was the reply.

This is how impartial Greek justice is under a military dictatorship.

Fortnight Vice Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, Director of Naval Reactors, USN, gave the House Appropriations Committee some blunt testimony the other day on the cost of human life in war, due to obsolescent equipment.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., got Rickover warmed up by remarking: "The new aircraft carriers will have an endurance of about 13 years. This shows the great advances we have made in technology. It must increase the cost effectiveness somewhat, if I might use a dirty word."

"I will use a dirtier word," said the father of the nuclear sub. "I call these cost effectiveness studies on nuclear power 'fog bombs.' They do little but put a blanket of fog over the issue that we should be building the best ships and weapons money can buy for our fighting men."

"What we are trying to do is drag the Navy into the 20th century. The fact that we have a nuclear Navy today is due almost entirely to Congress and the Atomic Energy Commission," continued Rickover, omitting all reference to himself as father of the Nautilus.

"If the U.S. has an advantage over other countries, it is its technological lead. If we are to stay ahead in military matters it will be by means of our technology, not by manpower," said Rickover. "We cannot afford to get to the common denominator of opposing our potential enemies with numbers of men."

"Our Navy is obsolescent. There will have to be block replacement of ships. I expect it will cost many billions of dollars before you get through. You might as well start now by building modern ships—ships with all the advantages nuclear propulsion can provide."

"You will remember my question: What are your constituents more concerned about: the dollars being spent in Vietnam or the weekly casualty lists? The answer is obvious. Anything we can do to reduce the number of our boys killed or wounded is worth a great deal. Cost effectiveness studies do not take loss of life into account."

JAMES RESTON

A Slight Glean of Hope

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—The importance of the Johnson-Kosygin talks is that they have linked the major problems of Vietnam, the Middle East and arms control, and changed both the level and the scope of the East-West discussions.

As long as each of these questions was discussed separately, and as long as they remained in the propaganda pit of the United Nations, the outlook was bleak. Both sides were locked into hopelessly contradictory positions on Vietnam and the Arab-Israeli war; both had taken commitments to their embattled clients; and the public recriminations over television merely envenomed the debate.

Now, however, there is a chance—probably no more than that—to continue and expand the talks. Usually, it is better to deal diplomatically with one practical problem at a time, but occasionally it is easier to reach agreement on very large objectives, and this may be such a time.

For example, the two sides have reached an impasse on the single issue of stopping the bombing of North Vietnam and going to negotiations to end that war. The political lines have been drawn tight on this narrow but important issue within the United States. But if President Johnson and Chairman Kosygin were to formalize the search for a general settlement of world issues, it would be much easier to end the bombing during such an inquiry.

Already, the preliminary conversations between the two leaders have influenced at least one policy decision in Washington on the war in Vietnam. Secretary of Defense McNamara was just about to start for Saigon when Chairman Kosygin arrived in this country. His purpose was fairly clear. President Johnson had committed himself to give General Westmoreland whatever troops he requested. The general is understood to have requested another 100,000 men and Mr. McNamara was going to Vietnam to make a recommendation to the President on this issue.

When Premier Kosygin arrived here at the United Nations, the McNamara trip was postponed. The Secretary found himself, much to his surprise, not in Saigon but at the summit talks at Glassboro State College in New Jersey. Obviously it would be awkward to send another 100,000 American troops to Vietnam if serious conversations for a wider East-West accommodation were in process.

The Soviet Government is in a comparable position in the Middle East. While Mr. Kosygin was talking to President Johnson, President Podgorny of the U.S.S.R. was in Cairo talking to President Nasser of the United Arab Republic about replacing the two or three billions of dollars worth of arms lost in the Israeli war.

In an atmosphere of mounting tension, with Moscow and Washington divided and Peking trying to replace Soviet influence in the Middle East, the military escalation was likely to continue in both places. It still may go forward anyway, but the Johnson-Kosygin talks have at least given both sides a little time to discuss whether it is in anybody's interest to continue along this same costly military journey.

Similarly, Moscow and Washington are on the verge of a spectacular new phase of the arms race. The President and particularly Secretary McNamara have been extremely reluctant to get into the development of an anti-ballistic missile system, which would cost about $60 billion in the next seven years, but the more the tension mounts and spreads from Vietnam to the Middle East, the more likely it is that this upward spiral of rearmament will continue.

The question now is not whether Johnson and Kosygin have been able to deal with the details of these questions—obviously they have not—but whether they can get at the heart of the problem, which is the dominion of fear on both sides, and whether they can keep the dialogue going at the highest levels of decision.

These talks cannot safely be left to Johnson and Kosygin and their foreign secretaries. Europe, the Middle East, South-east Asia and China have all been apprehensive that the two most powerful nations, the United States and the U.S.S.R., would make a deal to follow parallel policies that might not be in the interest of other nations in other parts of the world.

Accordingly, the need to enlarge the scope of the talks to include President de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Wilson of Britain is fairly obvious. De Gaulle proposed such a Big Four meeting at the height of the Middle Eastern crisis, but it was turned down by Moscow, and it is still not clear that Kosygin is ready yet for such ambitious negotiations. Secretary of State Rusk has been saying lately that there was "no organic link" between the problem in Vietnam and the problems in the Middle East and the problems of arms shipments and control.

But organic or no, the problems are obviously linked politically and psychologically. Each is poisoning the entire body of world politics. Each problem is frozen by itself, but for a general accommodation and easing of world tensions, concessions might be made that are impossible in the narrow context of Vietnam itself.

No doubt this is reaching well beyond the present phase of the Johnson-Kosygin talks. If left where they are, the summit meeting at Glassboro State College could go down in history as little more than an amusing insult to Princeton, but if continued and expanded, they could provide more freedom of diplomatic maneuver than exists today.

The 'Torpedo' Course

HARRISBURG—If there was ever any doubt before over Governor Shafer's determination to chart his own legislative course—to the almost complete exclusion of the leadership of the "loyal opposition"—it certainly has been largely dispelled by now.

This of course is a Governor's prerogative, but the question has cropped up repeatedly in recent weeks as to whether this "damn-the-torpedoes (Democrats), full-speed-ahead" strategy on the part of His Excellency regarding minority Democrats has been the proper course to follow.

Under what might roughly be termed "ordinary circumstances," that is, where an administration enjoys undisputed authority and control within its own party of the two houses of the Legislature, the "torpedo" course usually is followed with nominal assurance of success.

Mr. Shafer however has not, does not and will not enjoy any such superiority in liaison and alignment between his office and the Legislature either this year or next year.

In fact at the moment, thanks to illnesses and what-not absences from legislative pews in both House and Senate, the Shafer Administration does not have—within its own GOP ranks—a running majority in either chamber.

Even at best and under the most optimum circumstance (which rarely develops) the Shafer Administration has only 102 House seats (the exact number needed to clear legislation) and 26 Senate seats—again the exact number needed to clear legislation in that chamber.

Interestingly, the Democratic leadership in both House and Senate—particularly the House—has offered repeatedly to sit down with his gubernatorial nibs to work out compromise programs agreeable to both Democrats and Republicans.

Insofar as minority Democrats are concerned this has never even remotely occurred—with the lone exception of the earlier-in-the-year brief, joint, mumble on the constitutional convention issue dear to Mr. Shafer's heart. Even this was regarded as a bit of a ragged affair at best, garnished (in the eyes of irritated Democrats) with overloaded GOP overtones.

The Governor's current tax hassle is one of the more contemporary illustrations of ramming ahead on a lone hoof basis, ignoring the offers of Democratic minority leadership to at least sit down and to over the tax dilemma with him—to which Mr. Shafer has turned a plugged ear.

The consensus is growing that Mr. Shafer has made a major mistake in assuming this "torpedo" attitude, considering the conditions with which he is faced within his own party in the Legislature—and the fact that opposition Democratic legislative leaders at least offered to pow-wow.

"It's beginning to show a picture of excessive bullheadedness on the part of the Governor," worried one Republican lawmaker last week, "which doesn't seem to be too good a public picture—unless of course you have overwhelming strength to back it up, which the Governor unfortunately just doesn't have in the Legislature this time."

The general feeling seems to be one of: at the very least the Governor could have discussed the tax problem, for example, with opposition Democratic legislative leaders—under the circumstances with which Republicans are faced in their own party in the House and Senate.

Actually, when you come right down to it, minority Democrats would be within their (political) right to simply relax and let the Shafer Administration worry about its own problems—without any offer of possible assistance—inasmuch as Republicans clamored for (and received) the in-power role in both the executive and legislative branches.

SOMETIME THIS WEEK

Pope Paul Elevates 27 New Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI elevates 27 new cardinals this week in the second consistory of his reign, giving Roman Catholicism a record 118 cardinals and laying the groundwork for major personnel changes in his Vatican curia.

The pontiff has made simplicity the rule for the consistorial ceremonies today, Wednesday and Thursday. He will be rewarding with red hats those he has called "particularly deserving churchmen."

That was a criterion he set two years ago, on the eve of his first consistory. The Pope said in February 1965 the next time he named cardinals he would pick such men and make them his "cooperators and counselors in ruling and governing" the church, along with the existing cardinals and himself.

His selections include three American prelates who run huge archdioceses and a fourth American who has held a key Vatican curia job for years. That gives the United States eight cardinals, the most ever.

He chose seven other curia career men, six of them the chief aides to six cardinals heading important Vatican congregations. They now will hold the same rank as their aging bosses and likely will succeed them.

He also named a 45-year-old German, youngest of all the cardinals, who lives by choice behind the wall in Communist East Berlin. He gave Poland a second cardinal, a 47-year-old prelate who is the first cardinal to have spent his entire priestly ministry under communism.

Also tapped were six papal nuncios, two French archbishops, two Italian archbishops, an Argentine, the first Bolivian ever, the first Indonesian ever, and a Swiss who was leader of the Benedictine order.

The Vatican Ecumenical Council of 1962-65 worried about excessive pomp and lavishness in the Catholic hierarchy, and that thinking has been applied for the current consistory.

As they flew into Rome, the arriving cardinals-designate were met by no official protocol envoys from the Vatican as in the past.

Other changes in ceremonies: no trainbearers to lift the hem of the flowing scarlet cloak; no chamberlains with swords to walk before the new church princes; no longer a woolen cloak as well as a silk cloak; silk mantles alone must suffice, and of the unwashed variety, with rich gold trimmings replaced by silk braid.

Guerrilla Training Center Broken Up

GUATEMALA (AP)—Police broke up yesterday what they said was a guerrilla training center for antigovernment rebel armed forces, killing one person and capturing three.

The center was in a house in the southern section of the city. Police said they found grenades, homemade bombs, other explosive materials and printed Communist propaganda.

Episcopal Priest Says Pope Is Key

(C) N.Y. Times News Service MOUNT VERNON, N.Y.—An Episcopal priest told an Ecumenical Commission breakfast here yesterday that the reunion of Christendom is "impossible" without some form of universal papal recognition.

The speaker was the Rev. Canon Albert J. DuBois, national director of the American Church Union which represents the Anglo-Catholic, or "high church" wing of American Episcopalianism.

A similar view was expressed earlier this month in San Francisco by the Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, Episcopal bishop of California. Myers, successor to the Rev. James A. Pike in the California diocese, called on all Christians to recognize the Pope as their pastoral leader.

Neither Canon DuBois nor Myers touched on the subject of papal infallibility, a doctrine unacceptable to non-Roman Catholics. Their emphasis was on the potential role of the pope as "chief pastor" or "chief spokesman."

Escapee's Body Pulled From River

BRIDGEPORT, Pa. (AP) — The body of a man identified as Frederick Malchow, 40, one of two convicted rapists who escaped from sheriff's deputies in nearby Norristown Friday, was pulled from the Schuylkill River here yesterday, police said.

Malchow and Harold J. Evans Jr., 22, both of Chicago, bolted from two unarmed guards in front of the Montgomery County Courthouse after being convicted of nine counts of rape in an attack on a Wynnewood, Pa., housewife.

No report of Evans has been received since the escape. He and Malchow had been handcuffed together but apparently found a way to break the bonds.

Bridgeport police said the body, with part of a handcuff still clamped to the right wrist, was spotted in the river near a commuter railroad bridge by a woman walking on the riverbank.

It was the same railroad bridge where residents reported seeing a suspicious man Friday night hours after the escape. Police searched the bridge, but the men had disappeared. They theorized that Malchow may have jumped into the river—which is rather shallow under the bridge—and either drowned or was knocked unconscious in the plunge.

Meredith Marches In Storm

SARDIS, Miss. (AP) — A footsore James H. Meredith greeted a group of Negroes gathered to watch his march "to fight fear" in the manner of a political campaigner yesterday and later slogged silently through a heavy rainstorm.

Meredith, who turned 34 yesterday, began limping noticeably after the 15 minute downpour. He stopped to rest under the shade of an old oak tree along the roadside some two miles north of Sardis at midday.

"It doesn't hurt as bad as it did this morning," said Meredith when questioned about his limp. He laughed and added: "But I didn't say I didn't hurt anymore. I said the boots didn't."

Meredith, the first Negro to graduate from the University of Mississippi, wore the new yellow walking boots he had on when he began his 1967 trek down U.S. 51 at Hernando a day earlier.

It was near Hernando a year ago that Meredith was wounded by a blast of birdshot from a shotgun. He was on the second day of a trek from Memphis, Tenn., to Jackson, the Mississippi capital city.

OFF TO ANNAPOLIS

IN CONGRESS

Teachers Corps, Debt Racing Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two key administration requests—a boost in the national debt limit and expansion of the national Teachers Corps—face a race against time in Congress this week.

Both are expected to be approved before the 1967 fiscal year ends at midnight Friday. Senate and House leaders plan a Thursday start on a 10-day recess for the July 4th holiday.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., listed a heavy, catch-up legislative schedule for the Senate this week as a result of nine days devoted almost wholly to debate on last Friday's censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

Unless the Senate clears most of its schedule, Mansfield told a reporter, he may ask senators to work through Friday. Pending business today in the Senate includes an administration request to tighten present federal controls over savings and loan holding companies.

Approved by the Senate Banking Committee, the measure would require corporations and other holding companies to divorce unrelated operations if they own more than one savings and loan unit.

Mansfield called the Senate to meet two hours early today, at 10 a.m., to permit Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, to deliver a lengthy speech on Vietnam and foreign policy.

The Senate Finance Committee is expected to approve a House-passed bill raising the present permanent national debt limit to $358 billion. The existing temporary $356-billion ceiling expires June 30 and the limit then would drop to $285 billion, well below the actual debt.

Indications are the Senate will go along with the present plan for an interim limit of $285 billion which would rise to $365 billion July 1, 1968.

The House is expected to act today or tomorrow on a hard-won compromise authorization for the Teachers Corps, established in 1965, to provide special teams of teachers for underprivileged students in ghetto and slum areas.

ON EVE OF 50th ANNIVERSARY

Kremlin Satisfied With Progress

By RAYMOND H. ANDERSON (C) N.Y. Times News Service MOSCOW—The Soviet Communist Party has reviewed its 50 turbulent years in power. Yesterday it declared itself satisfied with the record.

The policies and achievements of the last five decades, the party's Central Committee vowed, will continue to guide the Soviet Union to its proclaimed goal of a Communist society.

The party reviewed its history and objectives in theses approved last week at a two-day meeting of the Central Committee. The theses, filling four pages, were published in all leading newspapers yesterday.

The theses, setting the theme for celebrations of the Bolshevik Revolution on Nov. 7, 1917, cast no new light into obscure corners of Soviet history and advanced no new policies.

The Communist Party reiterated that "peaceful coexistence" remained the basis of its international relations. But it also declared that "imperialism, notably United States imperialism, was and continues to be the main enemy of the national liberation movement."

Proclaiming that the Soviet Union and its Communist allies possessed the armed might to thwart the unleashing of a new world war, the Communist Party added:

"However, as long as imperialism exists, the threat of predatory wars persists. This is made clear by the aggressive war of the United States in Vietnam, the preparation by the imperialists of Israel's aggression against the peace-loving Arab people and the unceasing provocations against Cuba."

A significant difference of wording was noted in the document's comments on the war in Vietnam and the Middle East conflict.

On Vietnam, the Communist Party proclaimed:

"The Soviet people decisively support the Vietnamese people in their heroic fight against the criminal aggression of the United States imperialism. They firmly believe that the just cause of the Vietnamese people will triumph."

The party's declaration on the Middle East crisis, omitting any reference to eventual "triumph," read:

"The Soviet people fully support the just struggle of the Arab peoples against Israeli aggression, against Israel's imperialist benefactors."

The Central Committee recalled the privations and struggles of the 1930's to industrialize the nation.

It acknowledged that the cost of the forced industrialization was a harsh reduction in living standards. But today, the party added, living standards are improving rapidly and consumer goods production is reaching a balance with heavy industry. The theses noted the role of Josef Stalin as supreme commander during World War II but condemned his dictatorial role that cost the lives of tens of thousands in the purges and the imprisonment of millions in labor camps.

The party document conceded that Moscow's allies administered "serious blows" to the enemy during the war, but asserted that it was the Soviet Union that "played the decisive role in the victory over Nazi Germany."

The Soviet Communist Party denounced the "chauvinist" role of Chairman Mao Tse-tung in China and called on the Chinese Communists to break with Mao's "disastrous policies" and rejoin the Communist ranks.

The document passed over former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's decade of rule with merely an allusion to him in a denunciation of "subjectivist" policies that caused grave setbacks to agricultural developments.

MOM'S GOT A REPUTATION SINCE SHE GOT HER NEW FLAME.

She has a reputation as one of the best cooks in the neighborhood. And she owes it all to her handsome, easy-going new flame—a modern Gas range.

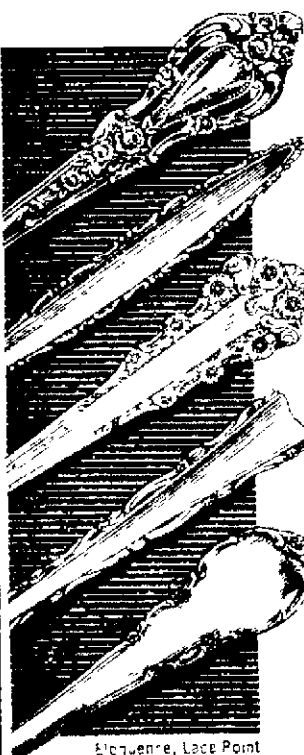

Mom, the chef, is always dropping names like Burner-with-a-Brain, and Oven-with-a-Mind and automatic rotisserie. And names like broiled filet en croute, spinach souffle, quiche Lorraine and ham mousse.

In fact, Mom's something of a show-off with her "Programmed Gas Cooking." She just puts the food into the oven, sets the time and temperature, and then goes about other business with studied indifference toward her cooking. She can afford a great show of confidence because her Gas oven will automatically stop cooking at precisely the correct moment and keep her dinner piping hot, without overcooking or drying out, until everyone is ready to eat.

Needless to say, the whole family is happy with Mom's new flame. And Mom is happy with her new reputation.

Prices Move Upward on Amex And Over-the-Counter Market

By DOUGLAS W. CRAY
(c) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Prices advanced last week on the American Stock Exchange and on the Over-the-Counter market. The high point was reached on Tuesday when American volume soared to 6,277,345 shares, the fourth largest single-day volume on record.

Low-priced issues, those costing $10 or less, were in demand and actively traded all week. The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 stocks traded on the Over-the-Counter market moved unevenly to close at 311.21, up 3.19 from the previous week.

The American Stock Exchange's index of stock prices rose 33 cents to close at $19.90. Its high for the week was $20.12 and its low was $19.35.

Volume was moderate on the Over-the-Counter market but American Stock Exchange volume came to 26,471,135, the highest weekly figure since April 15, 1966, when 30,334,390 shares changed hands. Last week's volume compares with 25,291,255 shares traded the previous week.

Medtronic, Inc., soared 9 points on the Over-the-Counter market after the board of directors of the company proposed to split the common stock two-for-one.

Sharply improved profits in the six months ended May 31 helped move Andrew Jergens ahead 3 points.

Piedmont Natural Gas was actively traded and advanced 2 points.

A rise in profits sent Pettibone & Mulliken ahead 2 points. Camco, Inc., fell 2 points after reporting lower profits for the nine months to April 30.

Texas American Oil dropped 3/4 point. The company announced a loss for its operations in 1966.

Gainers on the Over-the-Counter market included: Betz Labs 3, Carol Wire & Cable 3 1/2, Fischer Scientific 6, Kentucky Fried Chicken 3, Omark 4 1/2, Pinkerton 3 1/2, Commerce

Clearing House 5 1/2, Cal Chemical 3 1/2 and Grinnell 5.

Moving lower were: Anheuser-Busch, 3 1/4, C. R. Bard 2 1/2, Harper & Row 2 and Doyle Dane Bernbach 1 1/4.

It was one of the busiest weeks in eight months for the insurance stocks. Life insurance issues moving up were Aetna 5, Connecticut General 11, Travelers 4, National Life 3 and Lincoln National 2.

Fire and casualty shares were also higher. Continental Assurance 7, Continental Casualty 2 1/2 and Fund America 1 1/2.

Volume leader for the week on the American Stock Exchange was Goldfield Corp., suspended after the close on Tuesday by the Exchange and suspended through June 27 by the Securities Exchange Commission. In its two days of trading Goldfield advanced 2 points to 6% on $48,000 shares.

Compudyne was next, trading 708,800 shares. It was up 1% at 7 1/2. Nuclear Corp. was in third place, rising 3/4 to 3 1/2 on 659,900 shares.

Cornell Alumnae

Cornell University alumnae from this area will meet in Titusville Tuesday, when the Cornell Club of northwestern Pennsylvania holds its 13th annual dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. at the Drake Hotel. The guest speaker will be Donald G. Dickson, director of engineering admissions and student personnel at Cornell. Also on hand from the University will be Jack Musick, head football coach.

THE WEEK IN FINANCE

Concern Over War in Mid-East

By THOMAS E. MULLANEY
Financial Editor
(c) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—The United States economy is winding up six months of trying adjustment without substantive damage and is girding for an accelerated movement in the second half of 1967. The stock market seems to be poised for the same sort of acceleration.

Neither the market nor the economy signalled such movement last week, however. Both were rather subdued—hardly surprising in view of the uncertainties and problems that have again introduced worry and caution in the financial world.

Talk of tax increases—large ones—fills the air. There is renewed buoyancy in long-term interest rates. And there continues abundant discussion—and concern—about many unresolved political and economic issues created by this month's war in the Middle East.

Friday's summit meeting of President Johnson and Premier Kosygin gave them an opportunity to dispel some of the mistrust and discord that has arisen over world problems. Whether it accomplished anything constructive was not certain, but Wall Street was heartened by the meeting.

However the stock market, which had been drifting lower most of the week, failed to show any dramatic response. After two weeks, failed to show any dramatic response. After two weeks of recovery, the market slipped again and posted moderate losses for the week. Some aerospace-defense, glamour and speculative issues, however, resisted the trend and moved higher.

Meanwhile, the bond market also had a rather gloomy week. Prices had dropped sharply over the last two weeks under a heavy load of new offerings, but prices rallied Wednesday and Thursday in response to the highest yields in 45 years and some strong federal reserve purchases of Treasury issues.

With the major business indicators still indicating nothing better than a continuation of high-level sluggishness, the outlook for the second half is hardly conducive to a strong degree of bullishness or optimism. Yet such sentiments are clearly developing as mid-year approaches.

For one thing, inventory adjustment seems to be proceeding well. Government and business spending, strong props for the economy, are definitely headed higher. And consumer buying, more satisfactory than earlier this year, holds promise of substantial expansion in the months ahead.

The most encouraging news this week was the Commerce Department report that new factory orders for durable goods had jumped 6.6 per cent in May, their sharpest gain since September. At $24.8 billion, the month's new orders topped shipments of $22.9 billion for the first time this year.

Another heartening development was the continuation of slight gains in auto sales. The sales pick-up in the last 50 days has convinced Detroit analysts that the worst of the auto industry's downturn is over. Sales of cars in the middle third of June showed a 2 per cent increase over the same period last year.

Consumer income after taxes has been rising at a rate of 7 per cent this year, but the public has been saving more and borrowing less. Thus, according to the Chase Manhattan Bank, there was a "cut in potential demand at an annual rate of $4 billion." This pattern, the bank adds, may be shifting again. It believes that spending from now on might rise in line with income. It might be helped by the marked improvement in consumer confidence since January, by lower food prices since last fall's highs, and by expanded purchasing power resulting from the round of wage increases now in motion.

Another New York bank, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, also offered an optimistic business assessment last week. It said:

"Indications are that second-quarter Gross National Product will show an appreciably larger rise than was recorded in the first three months—with all major components of G.N.P. except business investment in inventories and capital goods likely to make a contribution to the advance. A gain of $9 billion to $10 billion at an annual rate seems likely, compared with a first-quarter advance of only $4.4 billion."

The fiscal spur to the economy has arisen from the massive federal deficit in prospect. Federal cash spending, the Chase bank noted, is up $30 billion from fiscal 1965 to the budget estimates for fiscal 1968—an increase at an annual rate of 12 per cent, compared with the average yearly gain of 5.4 per cent in the period between fiscal 1960 and 65.

The spending increase, however, is clearly excessive. To assure continued growth with price stability, some dramatic government action will have to be taken—either a tax increase or a reduction in nondefense spending, or a combination of the two.

Although many economists and business men have come to accept the inevitability of a tax increase—perhaps for a 10 per cent surcharge—in view of the serious discrepancy between revenues and expenditures in the federal budget, there is by no means agreement that such a step is the correct one. A tax increase, they fear, will curtail the economic recovery just as it is starting to take root. Their recommendation is a deep cut in non-defense spending, which has been rising much too sharply.

This point was stressed by a New York banker who indicated he was worried about the Middle East situation. He said it could have a greater impact eventually on the United States economy than the Vietnam war, particularly if the flow of Middle East oil is cut off from Europe.

Other views on the outlook expressed this week were in general cautious. Stuart Saunders, chairman of the Pennsylvania Railroad and vice chairman of the Business Council, was not bullish in his appraisal of the economic situation.

A rather mixed assessment came from James H. Binger, chairman of Honeywell, Inc., which manufactures computers and automatic controls for homes and buildings.

Simon Strauss, vice president of the American Smelting and Refining Company, said that labor would play a big part in deciding whether, and how far, the economy goes forward in the second half.

John D. Harper, president of the Aluminum Company of America, commented: "Our expectation is that the economy will improve steadily through the balance of the year and into 1968."

Another optimistic view was expressed by Lewis P. Seiler, chairman of the Associated Dry Goods Corporation.

After two weeks of recovery the stock market turned slightly lower last week in slower trading. All the averages lost ground.

While 766 stocks declined last week, 676 rose and 152 finished unchanged. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange slipped from the previous week's turnover, the second largest in the history of the Exchange. Last week's volume was 47.3 million shares, against 54.7 million the previous week.

The Dow-Jones industrial average lost 7.63 points and closed at 877.37. The New York Times combined average of 50 stocks eased 3.57 to 516.33. Standard & Poor's 500-stock combined index dipped 0.54 to 92.00.

Martin-Marietta topped the most-active list on turnover of 1,137,000 shares last week. It finished with a net gain of 1 point at 23 1/4 after having hit a new high of 25 1/4. Martin-Marietta, which makes the sprint missile, was strong and active, as were other aerospace issues, following news that China had exploded a hydrogen bomb.

Glen Alden, engaged in textile production and movie theater operations, was the second busiest issue with 908,500 shares sold. It closed at 14, up 2 1/2. There was no news to account for investor interest other than the popularity of low-priced stocks.

A J Industries was the third most-active stock on a volume of 669,300 shares. Another low priced issue, it jumped 2 1/2 to 7. The company, which manufactures airplane fuel tanks and truck parts, reported that its June quarter earnings were expected to approximate the 20 cents a share reported for all of its previous fiscal year, ended in March.

Pan American Airways was in fourth position on exchange of 502,800 shares. It declined 2 1/2 to 30 1/4. Most airline issues were weak following reports that the carriers were not enjoying their expected growth. Many are reporting earnings below last year's. This led to several new lows for airline stocks last week. Pan American was slightly above its 1967 low of 30 1/4. American Telephone and Telegraph, in fifth place on a turnover of 495,200 shares, rose 1 1/2 to 58 1/2 after having been as high as 60 1/2. The company is enjoying strong growth this year, but share earnings held steady in the May quarter. Its Western Electric subsidiary is the prime contractor for the Nike-X program.

Beverage Regains Loop Lead on Weekend Sweep

BY LARRY G. STEELE

place in the loop, one-half game ahead of Ferraro Ford, who have played one less game. Beverage is now 12-3 while the Fordmen who blanked Koehler's 9-0 yesterday have a record of 11 wins and 3 defeats.

Rich Matlak's one-hit pitching and a 17-hit Beverage attack spelled victory in the opener Saturday against the Beermen. Barney Giddlers' leadoff home run sparked a six-run sixth frame in the second contest.

Yesterday's contests were a little closer, with Scott Melville throwing a three-hit shutout to win the first game and the Beverage going to the long ball to take the nightcap.

Beverage hurler Dick Schmidt who also twirled three-hit ball and Bill Baltzell of Bihler Tires hooked up in a scoreless duel in yesterday's second game, but the locals finally broke the ice in the fifth.

Guy Conti doubled and Nick Creola drew a walk, then Ken Magown ripped another two-bagger to score Conti and Beverage led 10-0. The West Springfield field came back in the bottom of the fifth on a single and three free passes, the last forcing in a run, to knot the game.

Steve Kudlock was the man of the hour for Beverage in the sixth, stroking a three-run homer over the left centerfield fence to put the locals ahead to stay, 4-1. Jim Hannon doubled and Schmidt walked to set up Kudlock's shot.

A sole home run by Giddlers in the seventh added icing to the cake.

Schmidt went the route to pick-up the victory, fanning seven. Baltzell struck out eight Beverage basemen and was tagged with the loss.

Melville never gave the Tirenmen a chance in the opener. He was cruising along on a two-hitter until the seventh, when Jerry Mahle blasted a triple for Bihler's but the little south-paw pitched out of trouble to preserve his shutout.

Beverage had taken a 1-0 edge in the third on singles by Conti. Nick Creola and Giddlers, then added four big runs in the fifth. Magown led off with a single and Tom Creola's grounder and attempted force play to score both runners and came home himself on a basehit by Jack Norton. An error on a misplay of the ball hit by Melville brought Norton home with the fifth Beverage run.

Saturday's opener against Koehler's was a rout from the first inning. The Beverage batted around in both the first and second frames, scoring seven runs in each for an early 14-0 lead.

Schmidt sparked the second inning merry-go-round, with Conti contributing a double.

The Beermen got their lone hit and run in the fourth frame off Matlak, who was impressive in going the distance. Jim Wolfe lined a one-out single to centerfield to break up Matlak's no-hitter, and later scored on an infield error after a walk and fielder's choice.

Barry Graham was less fortunate as the Beverage starter in the second game. Koehler's tapped him for two runs in the top of the first on three singles, a walk and Beverage misplay.

The locals turned two free passes, an error and basehit into three runs in the second to go ahead, 3-2, but Graham ran into trouble again in the fourth.

Veteran Koehler pitcher and manager Tom Lee lined a single to left to start the frame and John Coffey walked. Kudlock was called in from his centerfield position to relieve Graham on the mound, and promptly gave up an infield single to Ben Wall to lead the bases.

A wild pitch allowed Lee to romp home with the tying run, but Kudlock got out of the inning without further damage on a strikeout, intentional pass and doubleplay from Ken Martin at third to Conti at home, then to Magown at first.

Beverage finally solved Lee's slants in the fourth, although the locals pushed six runs across on only four hits, three Koehler misplays adding to the scoring.

Giddlers cleared the rightfield fence with a sole shot to highlight the frame.

The final Beverage tally came in the sixth. Martin led off with a walk, Magown bounced a two-bagger to the rightfield fence and Martin came home on a sacrifice fly by Giddlers.

Koehler scored again in the seventh. Dub Thompson, the Beermen's 51-year-old first sacker, stroked a one-out single and went into second on an error. Willie Damper grounded out, but Wolfe ripped a double to score Thompson before Kudlock could retire the side and gain the win in relief.

The final first-half league game for Beverage is Thursday night against Koehler's at Erie's Bayview Field. Counting exhibition contests, the locals now own a 16-3 slate for the season. Sunday, they travel to the Scranton area to defend their

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Don Lock hit a pair of home runs and drove in six runs yesterday as the Philadelphia Phillies swept a doubleheader from St. Louis, 6-4 and 10-4, ending the Cardinals' seven-game winning streak.

The Phils trimmed the Cards' first-place edge over Cincinnati to 2 1/2 games before a record St. Louis doubleheader crowd of 47,014.

Lock's first homer with a man on capped a decisive three-run fifth inning in the opener against loser Larry Jaster after Gary Cowan homered. Lock had singled in an earlier run and doubled in a two-run fourth inning.

Lock, who was 4-for-5 in the opener and 2-for-3 in the nightcap, slugged a two-run homer off Al Jackson in the first inning of the second game. He later singled home another run.

The Phils scored six unearned runs in the nightcap on four of five errors committed by the Cardinals. The first three tainted runs gave Philadelphia a 5-3 lead after solo homers by Ed Spiezio and Curt Flood of St. Louis off starter Dick Ellsworth.

John Boomer relieved and stopped the Cardinals the rest of the way with one run, a run-scoring single by Orlando Cepeda, who had five hits in the twinning.

Jim Bunning was the first-game winner but needed relief from Dick Hall after giving up homers to Cepeda and Bob Tolan.

a scoreless dual between Nieko and Bo Belinsky. His second homer and fourth hit climaxed a five-run seventh.

Nieko, 2-2, making his fifth major league start, completed his first game, giving up singles in the second, fifth and eighth.

Hands also went the route for the first time in his career after 27 failures, including 26 as a rookie last year.

His only shaky inning came in the sixth when Houston scored on singles by Dave Adlesh, Joe Morgan and Sonny Jackson.

Al Spangler, brought up from Tacoma Saturday, doubled home two unearned runs in the fourth with his first hit as a Cub. It came off loser Don Wilson, 4-4, making his first appearance since hurling a no-hitter against Atlanta last Sunday.

Gardner Dickinson Breaks Slump With Triumph at Cleveland Open

By HAL PARES
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — Determined Gardner Dickinson, playing methodical, careful golf, captured his first professional tournament in five years yesterday with a 72-hole total of 271 for a four-stroke victory in the Cleveland Open Golf Tournament.

The wily veteran from Lost Tree Village, Fla., shot an even par 70 after three sub-par rounds to win the $103,500 tournament in easy fashion. He carried a two-stroke advantage into the last round and never was seriously pressed in his quest for the first-place money of $20,700.

The 39-year-old pro led after 61 holes by five shots and faltered slightly with bogeys on the eighth and ninth holes. But his closest pursuers were unable to take advantage of the temporary lapse.

A pair of Texans, Miller Barber with a 69 and Homero Blancas on a 72, finished in a tie for second at 275.

The 74 pros had to battle blustery winds and temperatures in the 60s, contrasted with Saturday's near-90-degree heat.

Tommy Aaron turned in the best score of the day, a 66, and deadlocked four others for fourth place at 277. Also at that figure were Jerry Edwards, Alan Henning, Phil Rodgers and Lou Graham.

One stroke back at 278 were Warren Yates, Arnold Palmer and Coble LeGrange.

Dickinson said he thought scores would be higher yesterday than in earlier rounds and "I just went out to play the course."

He said it was a very satisfying victory because "I've been playing very consistently for a good while and I've worked hard."

Dickinson raised his 1967 earnings to almost $45,000 in official money.

Playing cautiously with his comfortable margin, Dickinson tacked his 70 onto previous rounds of 68, 66 and 67. His round included four birdies and four bogeys. Before yesterday, he had bogeyed only one hole in three rounds.

Dickinson on the tight 6,611-yard Aurora Country Club layout, finished nine under par for the distance in recording his fifth tournament victory in 15 years.

Dickinson's best previous finish this year was a tie for third at Phoenix. He has missed the cut only twice in 18 tournaments.

Palmer, the circuit's leading money winner, bogeyed the first three holes and fell out of contention. He started only four back of the leader but had to settle for a three-over 73.

U.S. Open king Jack Nicklaus, Masters champion Gay Brewer and former U.S. Open titlist Ken Venturi were among a six-man group at 282.

Yates, the young pro from Atlanta who led after both the first and second rounds with consecutive 66s, and only three back of the pace-setter starting the round, closed with a 74.

In a four-way knot at 279 were Lionel Hebert, Gene Littler, Billy Casper and Bert Weaver.

Swanson Twirls Second No-Hit Game for Corry

Warren's Roy Swanson has done it again. The ex-Dragon ace turned in his second no-hit, no-run game in as many starts for the Corry Savings and Loan American Legion team on Saturday, blanking Lawrence Park, 10-0 in the first game of a twinbill at the losers' field.

Swanson, who hurled his first no-hitter for the Corry club against Harborcreek earlier this season, pitched nearly-perfect ball, giving up a solitary walk in the fifth inning.

He struck out 14 and went two-for-four at the plate. The nightcap of the doubleheader was, amazingly enough, another no-hit shutout for Corry Legion. This time it was Mike Jansen, a hometown boy, doing the hurling as Corry won 8-0.

Swanson collected three hits in four trips to the plate in that one, including a home run.

Austin Nips Ludlow In League Tilt, 6-5

Austin edged the Ludlow Wildcats, 6-5 in a McKean-Elk League game played at Austin yesterday. It was the third defeat against two victories for the Ludlow club.

Both teams pounded out 11 hits apiece, but Besslin and Garzel stroked homers for the Austin team. For the Wildcats, Bud Moore, Paul Johnston and Dick Thompson rapped doubles.

Thompson had a 3-for-5 afternoon at the plate and Moore collected a pair of hits in five at-bats to lead Ludlow.

Winning pitcher Plant also had a two-bagger as did Peno for Austin. Terry Bross went all the way for Ludlow and was tagged with the loss.

Ludlow has no games scheduled for next weekend, but will hold a practice at Sheffield on Saturday at 1 p.m.

Style Shop Romps

Style Shop romped past Barnhart-Davis in a makeup Bantam League game Saturday 28-4 to boost its record to 6-3. The contest was rained out last Wednesday. A 1 Stenstrom sparked the Clothiers' attack with six hits in six at-bats, including a triple and two doubles. Winning pitcher Keith Bathgate slammed a homer and double, Ricky Sorensen also slammed a round-tripper and Rick Ahlgren contributed a triple and two-bagger to the victory. Bobby Gregerson took the mound loss, despite a homer, one of only three hits off Bathgate.

Highwaymen Triumph

Bliss Highway outlasted Schoonover & Sugar Grove Farm Supply in a county Cadet contest Saturday, 13-11. Rick West trifles for the winners and Vic Anderson, Kit Weirich, Mike Madigan and Dan Albaugh all ripped two-baggers for the Sugar Grove club and R. Parker accounted for another double.

Milkmen Edge Russell

Warren County Dairy scored an 18-11 win over the Russell Merchants in a County Midget game played at Warner Field Friday night. Dean Ferris was the winning pitcher. Homering for the winners was Bob Kotchell, Ricky Jones tripled and Pat Fisk doubled for the winners. Gage, the losing pitcher, Cable, Bauer and Martin all doubled for the Merchants. This was the first win in six games for the Milkmen.

Gunning for Birds

"All the American League teams are gunning for us," says Baltimore Orioles coach Gene Woodling. The Orioles won the pennant and World Series last year.

Maplehurst Wins over Local Club

Maplehurst Country Club whipped Blueberry Hill in an inter-club golf match at the local course on Saturday, 75 to 52. A total of 86 golfers took part in the event, played in cold and rain.

George Eberhardt took low gross honors for Blueberry and for the day, carding a 79. Chuck Irvin and Larry Anderson came in with 88's and Vito Brindis had an 89 for the local club.

Low net honors went to Ross Kremer with a 71, Jim Valen-tine came in with 73, Ken Morrison fired a 74 and both Ted Maniakas and Newt O'Dell had 75's.

For the visiting club, Clair Hammond had the low gross, an 83, Dale Hillard carded 84 and Jack Fulford toured the course in 86.

Hank Kane's 75 was Maplehurst's low net score. Dick Kimball Jr. and Gene Nelson took 75's and Joe Caprino had a 77.

Lunch and refreshments added to the day's enjoyment, topped off with a buffet dinner in the evening.

Ortiz Title Bout Heads Week's Card

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Carlos Ortiz, the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker, will defend his world lightweight championship Saturday night in San Juan, Puerto Rico, against Sugar Ramos, the challenger he met in Mexico last October in a bout that ended in a riotous scene.

It will be the 11th lightweight title bout for the 30-year-old Ortiz who won the crown from Joe Brown in 1962, lost it to Ismael Laguna of Panama in 1965 and won it back later the same year. Ortiz has promised to make his next defense against Laguna, the No. 1 challenger, if he wins.

A large crowd is expected to see the 15-round match at Hiram Bithorn Stadium. Ramos, 25, is the former world featherweight champion from Cuba who lost his title to Vicente Saldivar in Mexico City in 1964.

The first match in Mexico City last October ended in wild confusion when Referee Billy Conn stopped the fight in the fifth round after Ramos was cut over the left eye. Both Conn and Ortiz left the ring, and there was a wild scene as the crowd started a demonstration.

Ortiz stopped Flash Elorde Nov. 22 in his most recent defense.

Thad Spencer, rated No. 5 among the heavyweights by the World Boxing Association which has named him one of eight to box for the title it took away from Cassius Clay, will risk his ranking tonight in a 10-round bout with Amos "Big Train" Lincoln of Los Angeles in the Cow Palace at San Francisco.

Lincoln stopped Spencer in 1964 and won a decision over him in 1965, but the San Francisco heavy has been moving up in recent months.

Joe Brown, the former lightweight champ from whom Ortiz won the title back in 1962, will start a comeback tonight in New Orleans against young Joe Barrientes of Dallas. According to the Ring record book Brown was 41 on May 18.

Doug Jones, once rated high among the heavyweights, meets young Boone Kirkman Thursday night in Seattle. Kirkman, a protege of the veteran Jack Hurley, recently stopped Eddie Machen and is unbeaten in 11 bouts.

Jimmy Lester of San Francisco hopes to move up among the welters at the expense of Luis Rodriguez, the former world welter champ from Cuba and Miami, in a Wednesday bout at Fresno, Calif.

Monday
At New York (Audubon) Pablo Lopez, Puerto Rico, vs. Mike Cruz, New York, welters, 8, at New Orleans, Joe Brown, Baton Rouge, La., vs. Joe Barrientes, Dallas, lights, 10, at San Francisco, Thad Spencer, San Francisco, vs. Amos Lincoln, Los Angeles, heavies, 10.

Tuesday
At Miami Beach, Fla. At Jones, Miami, vs. Ben Black, Chicago, heavies, 10, at Fresno, Calif., Gage Terrones, Fresno, vs. Tony Perez, San Francisco, welters, 10.

Wednesday
At Oakland, Calif., Jimmy Lester, San Francisco, vs. Luis Rodriguez, Mexico, welters, 10.

Thursday
At Los Angeles Alacran Torres, Mexico, vs. Cowboy Billy Smith, Steubenville, Ohio, bvs. 10, at Stockton, Calif., Ned Maldonado, Los Angeles, vs. Sugar Cane Carreon, Philippines, junior lights, 10, at Seattle, Boone Kirkman, Seattle, vs. Doug Jones, New York, heavies, 10, at Portland, Maine, Gene Herrick, Saco, Maine, vs. Dick French, Providence, R.I., middles, 10.

Friday
At Madrid, Spain, Borge Krogh, Denmark vs. Pedro Garrasco, Spain, lights, 10.

Saturday

TO THE VICTOR

Jamestown's Skip Furlow enjoys the fruits of victory with wife Valerie after capturing the 150-lap segment finale at Stateline Speedway Saturday night. Furlow finished ahead of the field in the first 75-lapper held at Eriez last weekend and completed the sweep at the Busti, N.Y., track. See story at right. (Photo by Mahan)

Whitehead And Blackmer Triumph at Eriez Track

Youngsville's Ronnie Blackmer made a runaway of the Sportsmen Class feature at Eriez Speedway last night, but Johnny Whitehead of North Claymer, N.Y., had to hustle to take first place in the New Car final event.

Whitehead just edged under the checkered flag ahead of Brockway's Squirt Johns, who dogged him during the final laps. Bobby Schnarrs of Busti took third, with Jamestown's Paul Wilson and Jerry Curtis of Conneaut, Ohio, following the leaders. The first four finishers all piloted '67 Chevilles.

Tom Dill flipped on the 23-lap of the 25-lap feature. He held fourth place prior to his accident.

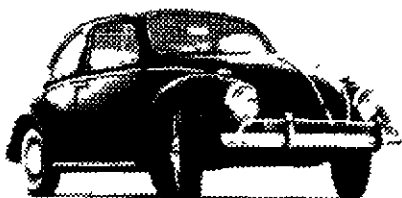

In the Sportsmen finale, it was no contest as Blackmer sped away from the field to win easily.

Bill Lyle of Brockway logged the second position, Gary Conn was third and another Youngsville driver, Jim Ruhlman, finished fourth.

Results of heat races and semis in both classes are listed below.

NEW CAR
Heat winners—Ron Schultz, Erie; John Seeley, Jamestown; Emory Mahan, Warren.
Semi-finals—Larry Parmenter, North East; Dick Litz, Erie.

SPORTSMEN
Heat winners—Mark Dipple, Girard; Bud Reynolds, Warren; Ron Blackmer, Youngsville.
Semi-finals—Austin Main, Falconer; Ron Blackmer, Youngsville.

Think small.

Our little car isn't so much of a novelty any more. A couple of dozen college kids don't try to squeeze inside it.

The guy at the gas station doesn't ask where the gas goes.

Nobody even stares at our shape. In fact, some people who drive our little flivver don't even think that about 27 miles to the gallon is going any great guns.

Or using 5 pints of oil instead of 5 quarts.
Or never needing anti-freeze.
Or racking up about 40,000 miles on a set of tires.
That's because once you get used to some of our economies, you don't even think about them any more. Except when you squeeze into a small parking spot. Or renew your small insurance. Or pay a small repair bill. Or trade in your old VW for a new one.

Think it over.

SQUIRT JOHNS CAPTURES LATE MODEL FEATURE AT STATELINE

Furlow Holds Lead to Take 150-Lap Race

BUSTI, N.Y. — "Skip" Furlow, of Ashville, N.Y., scored the first major victory of his brief, but colorful racing career Saturday night at Stateline Speedway. Starting in the pole position as a result of his first place finish in the first half of the 150 lap race run at Eriez Speedway, Furlow outlasted and out-spied his nearest competition to win the overall race by a three second margin.

Furlow lost the lead in the early stages of the race to Lyle Brown for a period of six laps, but inherited first place when a connecting rod broke through the side of Brown's engine forcing him to retire. From then until the 71st lap, Furlow lead the pack, sometimes by as much as ten seconds. On the 71st lap Furlow was forced to brake sharply to avoid crashing into a car momentarily out-of-control and Gary Coon, Reno, Pa., forged into the lead for approximately three-fourths of a lap.

For the rest of the race, it was Furlow all the way to the checkered flag. Placing second and third were Coon and Jim Ruhlman, Youngsville, respectively.

Furlow has been completing at Stateline for only two years but has garnered an enthusiastic clique of fans because of his consistently mature driving skills, culminated thus far in the victory in the 150-lap race run in two segments at the sister racetracks owned by Busti Speedways Inc.

In the 25-lap late model feature, Squirt Johns, the Brockway ace dominated the competition easily outdistancing the field of 27 starters. For a short time it appeared that Bobby Schnars, Busti, N.Y., might make a race of it, but he was forced to the sidelines with an undiagnosed automotive ailment.

Firmly entrenched in first place, Johns slackened his pace to conserve his '67 Chevelle for the remainder of the event. He was followed to the finish line by Fred Knapp, Jamestown, N.Y., in second place, Marty Rater, Findley Lake, N.Y., third and Paul Wilson, Jamestown, fourth, making it an all Chevelle race. Late-model heat races were won by Rich Miller, Girard, Pa., in a '67 Buick; Dick Litz, Erie, Pa., '67 Chevelle and Paul Hellman, Jamestown, New York, '67 Chevelle. Marty Rater, Findley Lake, N.Y., in a '67 Chevelle and Bob Schnars, Busti, N.Y. in another '67 Chevelle, won the two semi-final races.

In addition to the 75 lap segment feature for the sportsmen division, there were three 12-lap heat races run in this division. They were won by Lee Luce, Falconer, N.Y., Bruce Green, Falconer, N.Y. and Furlow.

Mark Donohue Wins Watkins Glen Prix

Mark Donohue, a 29-year-old automotive engineer from Stony Brook, N.Y., easily won the 20th annual Sports Car Grand Prix yesterday over Sam Posey of Sharon, Conn.

Only once, in the 20th lap, was Donohue headed in his Lola-Chevrolet when Posey passed him in his McLaren Chevrolet.

Donohue cleared the checkered flags by a margin of 1:37.

A pre-race favorite, he gained a big lead in the U.S. road racing championship by the victory. Now winner of four of five races, he has a total of 40 points.

Donohue's speed for the entire race was 105.87 miles per hour, a new sports car record and his time was one hour, 53 minutes, 24.4 seconds.

Earlier yesterday, Allan Moffatt, a 27-year-old race driver from Melbourne, Australia, was never headed and won the Glen Challenge for Manufacturers, the race of the sedans. Moffatt led Ray Caldwell of Marblehead, Mass., at the finish by 78 seconds.

In the Grand Prix, Posey came in second over one-half lap behind Donohue. Donohue's nearest rival in the point standing is Lothar Motschenbacher, of Beverly Hills, Calif., who finished fifth. He has 17 points.

Third was Skip Barber, of Concord, Mass., who drove a McLaren Chevrolet. Fourth was Don Morin, of North Attleboro, Mass., also in a McLaren.

Donohue took the top $3,000 purse for the $12,200 race.

The Onyx Trophy and the $500 prize for the fastest lap of the day went to Peter Reyson, of New York City, also in a McLaren Chevrolet. His shattering lap record was 112.73 mph.

In the 50-lap 115 mile preliminary Glen Challenge, Moffatt, a native of Toronto, Canada, drove a Shelby American Mustang, an entry of George Kirksey of Houston, Calif., and had an average speed of 93.11 mph and a time of one hour, 14 minutes.

Caldwell who drove a Mustang, had a time of one hour, 15 minutes, 24.5 seconds, and his speed was 91.50 miles per hour. Bob Tullius, of Alexander, Va., was third in a Dodge Dart.

Moffatt took home the $2,500 top prize money.

Nugent Home Today

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent and her little son, "Lyn," have their doctors' okay to leave Seton Hospital and go home this morning.

Parents Luci, 19, and Patrick J. Nugent, 23, announced yesterday that they will permit cameramen to take the first public pictures at that time of the grandchild of President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Meanwhile, everything was in readiness at the Nugent's new eight-room Austin home for the 5-day-old baby, including a waiting Swiss-born nurse, who took care of Luci when she was a baby.

The nurse, Miss Mary Gfeller, a naturalized U.S. citizen since 1947, came to the United States from Geneva 30 years ago and is a specialist in the care of children.

AT BOROUGH AIRPORT

One-Day Circus
Stand Is Today

Today is circus day in Warren—King Bros. circus day.

The elephants are to be unloaded early today to help the workmen and horses raise the big top, the menagerie and the other tents that make up the canvas city that comprise the King Bros. Circus tented city. This exciting combination of picturesque activities will occur on the circus grounds at airport show grounds where performances will be given at 2 and 8 p.m., with doors open at 1 and 7 p.m.

The colorful cavalcade that transports the circus from city to city left Salamanca, N.Y., at midnight and was to roll into Warren at dawn.

Animal men, canvasmen, grooms, "cookhouse" crewmen and elephant handlers will first see that the cook and dining tents are raised and the field ranges are fired and cooking. Relays of men erecting the big top will recess in turn for breakfast, joining the animal and elephant men who will have fed their charges.

Before noon the big show will be in the air, and the aerial rigging, the three rings, the hippodrome track and the grandstands will be in place. There will be lots to see at the circus grounds early tomorrow. Shortly after noon all will be ready for the matinee performance.

Heading the array of internationally known talent in the King Bros. impressive three-ring program are the great Napoleon, the man who stands on his forefinger, the Apollo Family, unicyclists, lovely Heidi, Europe's noted acrobat and equilibrist, the Zamblerla troupe of trapeze artists, Fred Asal's troupe of educated dogs and ponies, the King Bros. performing Go-Go elephants, the famous Jordan family of aerialists and a congress of clowns headed by Art Adair, Harry Clark and Fred De Wolfe.

Sheffield Group
To Host 8 et 40

The Warren County Salon 405 Eight and Forty will meet Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. at the Northwest Savings and Loan Hospitality Room with Sheffield members as hostesses.

No meetings will be held in July and August, and in September the new officers will be installed; Mrs. Myrtle Davis, chapeau; Mrs. Rita Stanton, chapeau premiere; Mrs. Helen Tellman, P. A. monnet; Mrs. Kathleen Foy, P. A. archivist; Mrs. Bertha Wolfe, concierge; and the secretaire and cassiere will be appointed by the newly elected chapeau.

Election took place at the May meeting held in Youngsville Legion Home. Mrs. Ellen Valentine gave a report Child welfare done for the Polk State School, and read a letter, thanking the Salon for the generous work done for the school.

The chapeau gave an account of the State Health Department's drive for the measles shot in Pennsylvania with Allegheny County being first county to participate.

Those mysterious coned and cigar-shaped things may exist, they concluded, and should be taken seriously.

"There is proof, good photographic proof all over the world that these things exist," ufologist Gray Barker told his fellow believers and more than a thousand curious New Yorkers on Saturday night.

Erie Man Held
In Rifle Death

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — An Erie man was in jail yesterday, charged with the rifle slaying of his father-in-law.

Police said William Wilford, 22, stood across the street from a house occupied by Grover Tangle, 63, of Erie and pumped round after round into it with a .22 caliber rifle Saturday after a family quarrel.

copter crash at Camp Lejeune, N.C. The crash claimed 22 lives.

Among the dead is Lance Corporal Larry Bailey, the 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bailey of RD 3, Spartansburg.

The mishap at Camp Lejeune occurred during a training flight. Two helicopters collided in the air. Bailey was seriously injured in the crash and died later in a hospital at the camp. He was a helicopter technician.

He was a 1965 graduate of Corry Area High School. When at home, he attended Cobbs Corner Church in Spartansburg.

Some 35 Marines were involved in the crash. Thirteen of them were injured and the rest died. The larger of the two carried 33 men. It burst after crashing. The crash occurred near the end of the runway at the New River Marine Corps Air Facility, the main air base for Camp Lejeune.

Also killed in the crash was Cpl. George F. Bondarewicz of Buffalo, N.Y.

Identification of the dead was made Saturday after the next-of-kin had been notified.

Corry Area
Accident
Kills Man

CORRY — An RD 3, Greenville man, the father of 10, died at the Corry Memorial Hospital, Saturday, June 24, 1967, from injuries suffered in a traffic accident Friday.

Dead is Ronald Gregory, 46, who suffered multiple injuries when his auto was struck broadside by a loaded bulk milk truck, at the intersection of Route 89 and 77, about a mile south of Spartansburg.

Police said Gregory's vehicle entered the intersection into the path of the southbound truck driven by Robert Snapp, 24, of RD 3, Spartansburg.

Gregory was eastbound on Route 77 and failed to stop at a stop sign at the intersection of Route 89 which runs north and south, according to State Police of the Corry substation.

KILLED IN VIETNAM

Services Held
For Sullivan

Willis Michael Sullivan Jr., the soldier from the Youngsville area who was killed in Vietnam on June 16, was buried yesterday in Youngsville Cemetery.

The Rev. Spurgeon Witherow of the Youngsville EUB Church officiated at the ceremonies, which included full military honors. The flag flew at half-mast while a military firing squad from Battery C, Third Missile Battalion, First Artillery, at Irwin, Pa., accorded honors.

Dean Hendrickson and Larry Persing played "Taps." They are members of the Youngsville High School band. Spec. 4 Sullivan was a Youngsville High School graduate.

Members of the firing squad were Thomas E. Willoughby, Joseph D. Dolphin, Paul Shook, James Parker, Kenneth M. Smith, and Gary L. Hass, Sp 5 Thomas Green was in charge of the squad.

The flag which covered the coffin was presented to the parents by Lt. William Shannon of the 18th Artillery Group of the military unit at Oakdale.

McKinney Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

'Commuter
Bandit'
Identified

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The neighbors of burly Bill Zeller say it's hard to believe the quiet but amiable storekeeper is Pittsburgh's notorious "Commuter Bandit."

"He is so meek, mild and pleasant," said Stanley F. Sharp, 52. "I'd go into his store just to buy a paper and he'd thank me and call me: 'Sir.' He struck me as a retired gentleman just trying to make a few dimes."

But the FBI has identified Zeller, 52, as the "Commuter Bandit" the suave stick-up man who knocked over 16 banks for $171,000 in 5½ years.

"It's hard to believe what they're saying about him," said Mrs. Mary Busch, 57. "I wouldn't believe it if someone told me on a stack of Bibles."

Saturday, one day after Zeller's arrest, the FBI announced it was seeking a second man in connection with one of the string of 16 robberies.

They identified him as Richard P. Chiocca, 26, of Mount Oliver, a dark-haired wiry man who might be accompanied by a blonde, her two children and a doberman pinscher. Agents refused to say if there was any relationship between Zeller and Chiocca.

Chiocca's warrant charges him with the Aug. 24, 1964, theft of $15,040 from the Carrick branch of the Pittsburgh National Bank.

There was a bit of irony in the arrest of Zeller; he himself was plagued by petty thievery.

The windows of his three-story red-brick store were barred and screened—"kind of like a jail," said Mrs. Mary Barron, 22. "But that's because of the kids. Everybody else liked him."

Robert Johnson, 14, pointing to a boarded window, said, "Somebody was always breaking that one. One time they broke it and stole a bubble gum machine."

"Everybody in the neighborhood felt sorry for him because the kids were always stealing from him," said Sharp.

Area banks had offered over $20,000 in reward money for information on the "Commuter" a tag earned because police theorized the holdups were pulled by a suburbanite who drove into Pittsburgh and robbed a bank when he became short in cash.

The FBI said it arrested Zeller on a tip, but refused to comment further.

It's time now to begin thinking about the weather for the Fourth of July, and I have a suggestion for the Jaycees along these lines.

Instead of leaving the matter to chance, as in past years, I think the sponsoring organization should grab this opportunity to make this year the truly outstanding Independence Day celebration in the nation.

We need a rainmaker who is a complete flop at his job. Such a man is Hymie Pitzgreber, the biggest failure of our time. Whatever he attempts, he bungles. It's never missed.

Last summer, he was selected by the Chillicothe, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce to ward off vacationing college students. Mind you Chillicothe never had a problem with the Daytona Beach crowd, but they weren't taking any chances. You guessed it—for the first time in the history of the town, hundreds flocked into the community and upset all plans for the Fourth Annual Knitting Derby.

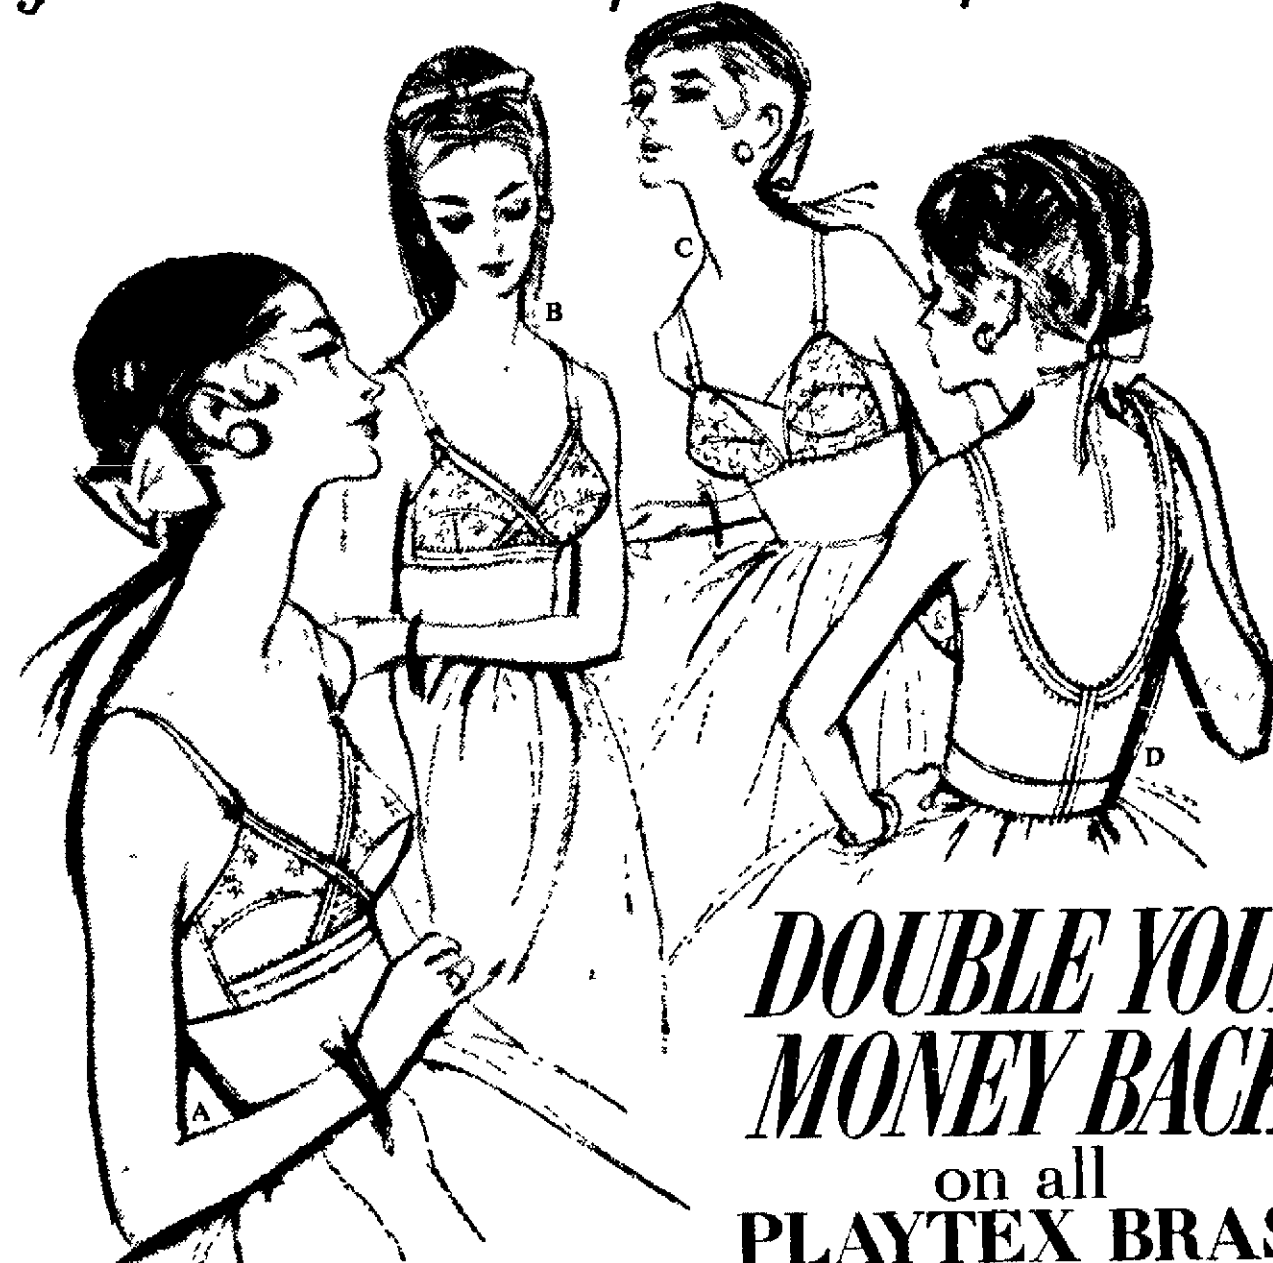

Pitz' was the man who was sent to Cuba to make sure Castro didn't go Communist.

And he was the fellow picked for the job of straightening up the country's postal system.

With a loser like that promoting a rainstorm for the Fourth of July, we couldn't miss. It's bound to be the sunniest day of the year.

MORE ON EXPO 67. All kinds of literature has come to my desk, and one paragraph in a brochure that caught my eye was the assurance that "Visitors to Expo 67 can tell where they are on the 1,000-acre site by looking at colors. For instance, in one area, all the railings, signs, litter baskets, and walls on exposition-owned buildings will be of a certain color. If it is red, the visitor can turn to the red pages in the official guide book (cost $1) to find out exactly where he is." And for those who are not adept at reading maps—the ordinary kind that is—the foregoing is a very good idea indeed. Other items of interest to you who may be planning your trip and budget now: Expo 67's restaurants, and, there are more than one hundred of them, have prices posted outside so there is no possibility of a heart attack when you receive your bill—Prices range in all pocketbook sizes, from $1 for a meal, up to $15 for more elegant dining—You can decide if it's for you before you enter—Then, there is the smorgasbord restaurant in the five-nation Scandinavian pavilion that has put a price of $6 on its bill of fare, but, that $6 covers ALL the food you can eat! Nothing is said about "doggie bags"; the custom of carrying something home for Fido might be frowned on. Now, heaven forbid! but, if one of your children gets lost at Expo 67, don't panic, or get hysterical—Go instead to one of the closed circuit TV screens that are placed throughout the site. When the child is found—and he will be—your cherub will appear on the screen, holding a number and a message to tell you where to pick him up! Last but not least of your concerns is where to stay. This can be answered by writing to Lodgexpo, Expo 67, Administration and News Pavilion, Cité du Havre, (Mackay Pier), Montreal, Canada. Give full details of the dates, preferred price range, number of children in party.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a woman in my 70's but nobody would guess it. I have been married for over 40 years to a solid citizen whose interest in sex went dead about 10 years ago. His impotence was a relief to me because that part of our marriage was never very satisfactory. We raised a nice family and I did my duty but there was very little excitement. Last year we had our home remodeled. A man 12 years my junior worked here for one week. This may sound silly to you but we fell madly in love. We didn't do anything disgraceful but we did have a wonderful time together. We both knew it was a losing battle with partners and age against us, and he went out of my life as suddenly as he had come in. I can't get this man out of my mind. I wake up at night longing for him while my poor husband is snoring in the next room. Isn't it crazy that I can't have peace in my old age? I keep wondering what my grandchildren would say if they knew about this.

Please tell me, Ann, am I the only woman my age with these ideas? You might call it sick, but it's real and it's something I have to live with. Can you bring this subject into the open for discussion?—YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR HEART: Of course there are other women your age who are still interested in sex. But don't delude yourself into thinking you are in love—not in one week, lady.

Be glad you didn't do anything "disgraceful" because the price, in terms of guilt and shame would not have been worth it. Dream castles are fun to visit, Granny, but don't try to live in one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old boy who is trying awfully hard to get along with my parents. The trouble is, whenever we have a difference of opinion they take turns giving me a lecture. When my Mom runs out of breath my Dad starts in. If I try to explain my ideas they say, "Be quiet. We don't want any back talk."

Do you think it is back talk when a person wants to present his side of a disagreement? I don't yell or anything, I just make an attempt to speak, but they don't let me finish a sentence.

Please give your opinion. My folks always praise your column. Thank you.—A FRIEND IN NEED

DEAR FRIEND: One of the essentials of a good relationship is the free exchange of ideas. Parents who speak WITH their children, rather than AT them find that their ideas are more readily accepted. The ability to disagree without being disagreeable is the mark of a civilized person. All kids should be given the privilege of practicing the fine art of rebuttal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The other afternoon I invited a friend of mine for a game of bridge. She said, "I'm sorry but I am going to a dog shower today." I said, "A WHAT?" She then explained that her neighbor had just bought a new dog and she was having a shower for him. Of course each guest is supposed to bring a gift. I have heard of some nutty things in my life but this beats them all.

What is wrong with a woman who would insult her friends by inviting them to a party for a dog?—MORTIFIED

DEAR MORT: This is probably HER idea of something novel and imaginative. I'm not going to concern myself, however, as I was not invited. How about you?

Do you feel ill at ease... out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DIANE GEDDES

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce E. Geddes of 103 Alexander st., announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to James R. Glendening, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Glendening of Natrona Heights, Penna.

Miss Geddes, a 1965 graduate of Warren Area High School, is to begin her junior year of studies at Adrian College, Adrian, Michigan, in the fall. She is a member of the Alpha Phi sorority.

Her fiancé is a 1967 graduate of Adrian College where he majored in English and was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. He will hold a teaching and coaching position at Edon High School, Edon, Ohio, in the fall.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Akeley News

Miss Gloria Ellberg, a teacher in Cali, Columbia for the past two years, is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Van Clise. Miss Ellberg will return to Cali to resume her teaching duties this fall. Miss Ellberg was a Youth Ambassador to Pakistan in 1963.

David Van Clise, her brother, will be spending his summer counselling at a Bible Club camp in Upper Darby, Penna.

Hints From Heloise

Moving Made Easier

DEAR HELOISE: I hear that your husband was in the military service for 24 years. Won't you please give us some tips on moving? Many of us are not military and may not be transferred clear across the country, but we change homes and towns just the same.

"Mover"

Well now, the first thing I always do is drag out my biggest suitcase a day or two ahead of time and drop everything into it that we use daily... toothbrushes, soap, a box of facial tissue, change of underwear for the entire family, a towel or two, etc. And I always stick in instant coffee, a can of tuna fish, some crackers and that all important can opener!

Next, I set aside one footlocker or strong carton I've gotten from the moving company to pack by myself and I label this one loud and clear.

Into this goes my skillet, a favorite pot or pan, a roll of aluminum foil (you'd be surprised what you can cook in that when you can't find anything else), butter knife, salt and pepper, a few cans of soup and some dish towels.

At least we can exist on these for awhile. And if you want to be a real perfectionist, buy some paper plates and cups. It might be days before you get settled down and these sure come in handy.

If this footlocker or carton won't fit in your car, be sure that it is the LAST thing that goes on the van. Remember, the last things in the truck are the first out.

Lots of movers allow you to leave your clothing in the dresser drawers, so I cover the contents of mine with bath towels. They keep your things from messing up; saves you a little parking charges. Besides you'll know where to get a towel in a hurry.

Another tip is to leave your fitted sheets on the mattresses. They not only help protect the mattress, but when you're tired and the children are crying and need a nap, you've got a place to sleep without rumaging through a jillion boxes for that bedding. I always tuck a top sheet and two pillows under the fitted sheet.

Thank goodness I'm not moving tomorrow. I've had enough of it.

If anyone has more ideas on "easy moving," do drop them along to us. We would love to hear from you. Just pick up that pen and write to us in care of this paper. Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a suggestion for getting rid of your used razor blades the safe way.

Drop them into an empty spice can. The kind that has a slide top, such as cinnamon and nutmeg cans.

When the can is full, just slide the top shut and drop the whole thing in your trash. Sure prevents cut fingers.

Bonnie Linden

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE: After reading the letter from the harried housewife who felt that housework was never finished, I had to share a saying with you that is a favorite in our family.

My great-grandmother used to say, "Good Lord, we fight dirt all our life and then we lie down and they bury us in it!"

Another Mother

DEAR HELOISE: During the picnic months, I find this hint handy.

When taking deviled eggs along, I put them in my muffin tins. So handy to carry and they don't get all smashed.

Mrs. Howard Tyson

DEAR HELOISE: Did you know that corn plasters can be used on the bottom of chairs with small legs to keep them from marring those pretty hardwood floors?

Just stick them on. There's no mess, no glue.

Lee

I'm a little red hen if it doesn't work beautifully. Who would have ever thought it?

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: When making jelly there is nothing quite like a piece of dry nylon net for removing hardened wax that has dropped on the outside of the glasses.

Louise Stortroen

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Methodist WSCS Holds Pledge Service

Plans for the next meeting of the Methodist WSCS, to be held September 19, were made at the recent Pledge Service held at Grace Methodist Church. Mrs. John Huston, vice-president, was assisted by Mrs. Franklin Higgins and Mrs. Warren Carr in presiding over the service.

Following the opening of the meeting by Mrs. Raymond Rapp, president, Mrs. James Marshall gave devotions. The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Perry Sweet in the absence of Mrs. Herbert Samuelson. Miss Evelyn Boyd gave the treasurer's report.

Announcement was made of the missionary tea to be held at the Methodist House in Chattanooga on June 24 from 2 to 4 p.m. Dr. Ruth Ransom will be the speaker.

The Anne McKenzie Circle was in charge of the social hour with Mrs. Franklin Higgins and Mrs. John Huston as co-chairmen.

MULTIPLE BIRTHS

Q. I know that quintuplets are rare, but how rare? Is there any record of six or more babies being born at the same time?

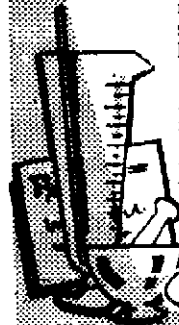

A. Six is the greatest number of human fetuses delivered at one time, despite extravagant claims to the contrary. In no case of proved sextuplets has any such offspring survived for more than 24 hours. In 28 million births occurring in the U.S. between 1922 and 1936, quadruplets occurred once in 492,314 pregnancies, while among 57 million births between 1928 and 1949, triplets were recorded once in 9,130 births, and twins occurred once in 89.3 births.

EXTRASYSTOLES

Q. I have been told that I have extra—something or other—meaning extra heart beats. Is this a sign of heart trouble?

A. As a rule premature beats (extrasystoles) are of no importance. They often occur in otherwise healthy hearts, especially in people past middle age. One famous heart specialist has said that they have the same significance as grey hairs.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10 3 ♥5 4 ♦A10 9 4 2 ♣8 5 4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
Dble. Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three spades. An effort should be made to reach game, and a mere return to two spades or a call of three diamonds will sound forced to partner, and he may be reluctant to take further action. A jump bid cannot be considered drastic in light of your failure to bid freely on the previous round.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10 7 ♥QJ 9 8 7 4 ♦5 ♣5 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Hearts, it must be with this hand, and you must, therefore, dutifully continue to four. This does not show any additional values, for you bid each time at the lowest level that it was possible for you to do so.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K 7 5 3 ♥AQ 8 ♦AK 8 2 ♣8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—We would be willing to assume at this point that your major suits were solid and consequently are concerned primarily with the number of aces. We would, therefore, bid four no trump (Blackwood) and, if partner showed two aces, we would risk a grand slam in spades.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A 2 ♥K 9 ♦K 9 5 3 2 ♣8 5 4 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♥ 2 ♠ 2 ♣
3 ♠ Pass 3 NT Pass
4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You had very sound raise to start with, we recommend a mere return to five clubs. The bidding has made it clear that your ace of spades is not as impressive a card as you thought it would be from the beginning, inasmuch as it duplicates partner's void.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K 6 ♥AQ 7 6 3 ♦AQ 7 3 ♣9 6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You have more values than you have previously shown and, since partner has rebid spades, you have normal support for that suit. One more try is recommended in the form of a raise to three spades.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ 9 5 ♥K 5 ♦9 8 5 2 ♣A QJ
What is your opening bid?
A.—This hand is just a shade light for an opening bid of one no trump, and it might be found convenient to open it with one club. The objection to bidding a spade is that a somewhat awkward rebid situation develops if partner responds with two hearts.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠8 2 ♥J ♦AJ 6 ♣AK 8 5 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—No very convenient rebid is available at the moment. A mere return to two spades could not be considered on grounds of inadequacy. A jump to three spades is certainly not to be entertained with such a meager trump holding. We would temporarily with a bid of three diamonds. If partner proceeds to three no trump, we return to three spades. If he rebids spades, we take him to four.

Q. 8—As dealer you hold:
♠A 8 5 ♥AQ 10 3 ♦AQ 5 4 2 ♣3
What is your opening bid?
A.—The better strategic call is one heart rather than one diamond. If you open with one diamond and partner responds two clubs, your hand is not quite strong enough for the reverse bid of two hearts. Therefore, it is better to treat those suits as they were the same length so that a convenient rebid is provided over partner's expected response.

Q. 9—As dealer you hold:
♠A 8 5 ♥AQ 10 3 ♦AQ 5 4 2 ♣3

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, JUNE 26, 1967.
ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Time is important but don't let the thought of it rush you into hasty moves, decisions. Confusion can reign if the guard is down.
TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Rationalize, think things out with logic before making important moves—and just about every move WILL be important. No excuses now for misguided efforts!
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Even though the day may begin slowly, it can and should be a happy memory later. Many openings for the willing, alert and consistent.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—More auspicious influences than for many. Choose the hours for action astutely; choose those for curtailing as smartly. Shun mere chance-taking.
LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Your dynamic energy and general magnetism will carry you far—if you are directing endeavors with thought and foresight.
VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Though there is a favorable outlook, some not entirely successful operations need an added "shot in the arm"—new methods, tightening up, may be just further information.
LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Decide early how you must proceed and do not permit moves or plans of others to keep you from pursuing worthwhile goals. You can accomplish a great deal now.
SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—If others want to make changes, evaluate carefully before dissenting—they maybe for the best. If you truly feel they are not right, work with logic to avert confusion and improve the situation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—To gain confidence and impress, one extends a hand and cooperates willingly—sometimes first, as you must now. Don't expect more than is reasonable.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Saturn auspicious. Activities should be handled evenly so as not to lap over too much in any direction. Start with a tempo you can keep—and do!
AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Weigh fitness and the validity of proposed action carefully. Keep your eye on the horizon as you turn your wheels.
PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Better-than-average opportunities for you to leap ahead and, if one matter seems sluggish, don't think they all are! Your outlook very important.
YOU BORN TODAY are intense, loving, conservative, and more apprehensive than you yourself believe. Be vigilant but NOT suspicious; let bygones be forgotten. You incline to become discouraged too easily. When a setback comes, just put more determination into the next try. Don't let endeavor become spotty and don't depend upon others. You would make an excellent writer, designer, administrator or archeologist; could also succeed in any occupation dealing with finance. Birthdate of: Wm. (Lord Kelvin) Thomson, Brit. scientist; Peter Lorre, actor.

How to Keep Well

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

lower end of the radius bone near the wrist joint. This is avoided by closing the hand and landing on the fist. This type of fracture (Colles) is common in oldsters and more often in men.

Our writer, who wishes to be anonymous, states that this is taught in the German school where he received his medical training. The technic can be practiced at home by falling on the bed with the hand open and again when it is closed. Making a fist when falling lessens the chance of breaking the wrist.
Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request. TOMORROW: Birth in Taxi.

J. V. writes: "A friend of mine cracks his knuckles, the bones in his feet, ankles, arms, and wrists. Is there something mentally wrong with such an individual? Please tell me what such maneuvers do to the bones!"

It does not harm the bones, but certain joints and bursa may become irritated. The noise usually stems from stretching the fibrous capsule and a good description of this is the sound created when a bulging oil drum is pressed in. In other instances, the fibrous ligament rubs against a bony prominence.

Knuckle snapping is not harmful unless it becomes a habit. In time the joint becomes irritated and arthritis may develop. The creaking noise that comes from the knees when squatting should cause no concern, but it should not be done excessively. Hip trouble develops in some girls who repeatedly extend the hip outwardly to make a loud clunking sound.

The ankle also may become irritated when constantly twisted. Shoulder noises can be produced easily by movements involving the rotary cuff. Most adults hear a clicking sound in the neck when the head is turned.

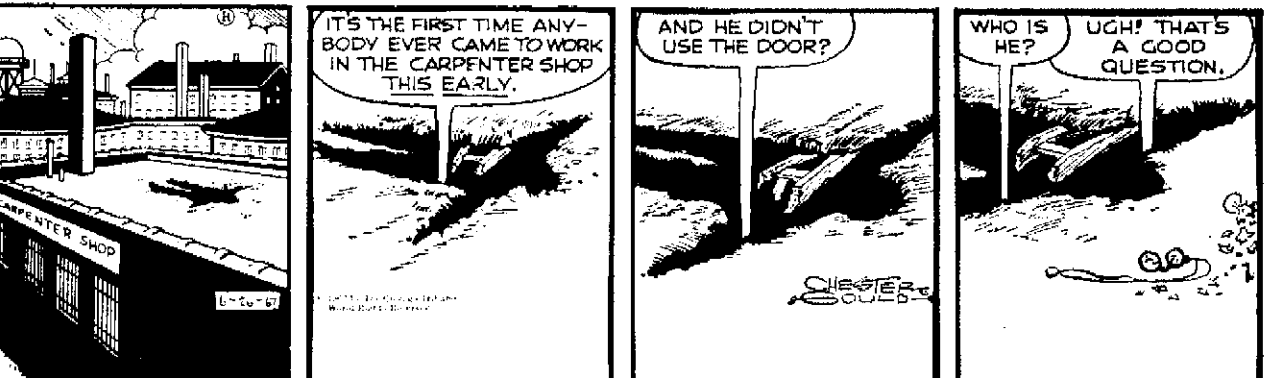

A retired physician suggested a hint concerning the prevention of wrist fracture. The victim usually slips or stumbles. On falling, he allows the weight of his body to be directed against the out-stretched palm in an attempt to break the fall. The full impact is transmitted to the

GALL BLADDER BOUTS
Mrs. W. writes: My gall bladder never bothers me except during pregnancy. Would you have an idea why this happens?
REPLY
Gall bladder trouble may occur during pregnancy when the flow of bile is sluggish and the structure does not drain properly. On the other hand, it is not fair to blame the organ for every digestive upset during pregnancy because expectant mothers with normal gall bladders also are troubled.

ALLERGY AND SINUS
N. H. writes: Is sinus disease an allergy?
REPLY
Sinus disease usually is due to bacterial infection complicating a head cold. Allergy may produce similar symptoms, and this origin is suspected when the condition recurs during certain seasons of the year or persists after the usual treatment.

ELEANOR STEBER AND BLANCHE THEBOM 2 Metropolitan Opera Stars To Open Chautauqua Season

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y. — Two brilliant singing stars of the Metropolitan Opera, Blanche Thebom and Eleanor Steber, open Chautauqua's 94th season with a joint recital in the amphitheater at 8:30 p.m. this Thursday.

In this first major event of the Chautauqua season, concertgoers will hear two singers who star in five music fields: concerts, operas, television, radio and recordings. They have been acclaimed by audiences not only throughout this country, but also in concert halls of capital cities throughout the world. In addition to independent concerts, Miss Steber and Miss Thebom travel widely as musical ambassadors for the United States State Department.

For their Chautauqua program, they have chosen several favorite operatic duets as well as solo selections. From "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini, they will portray Madame Butterfly and Suzuki in the poignant "Flower Duet" as they garland the little house in preparation for the return of Lt. Pinkerton. Miss Steber and Miss Thebom brought comic opera to new heights when they sang in Alfred Lunt's now famous English language production of "Cosi fan Tutte" by Mozart. They have included in their Chautauqua program two duets from this comic opera, "See Here, Dora-bella" and "O Sister, What to do Now." From "Olympiad" by Cherubini, "Norma" by Bellini and "Gloconda" by Ponchielli, they have chosen equally beautiful duets.

Miss Steber and Miss Thebom will also sing groups of solo songs. Miss Steber, noted for her presentation of German Lieder, will sing three songs by Richard Strauss. Miss Thebom has chosen a group of spirituals and American traditional music. Their program will be completed with other selections by Rossini, Handel, Mendelssohn, Franck and several contemporary composers.

As a leading mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, Blanche Thebom is known as one of the great singing actresses of her day with a repertoire of over 35 leading roles. She starred in Japan's Osaka Festival, England's Glyndebourne and Covent Garden Operas, the Royal Opera of Stockholm and major international music festivals. A citizen of the world, Blanche Thebom is vitally concerned with social affairs. Typical of her interests is her membership on the Board of Trustees of the Institute of International Education which administers Fulbright Funds.

Eleanor Steber, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, has fifty major operatic roles in her repertoire, more than any other soprano of the present generation. American born and trained, she is a unique artist whose wide range of musical roles demonstrates her dramatic ability. Like Miss Thebom, she is noted for her many appearances on radio and television, notably on the "Voice of Firestone" where she starred for ten years.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Supervisors of Sheffield Township will receive until 8 o'clock P.M., E.D.T., on July 10, 1967, at the office of the Sheffield Township Municipal Authority at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read, sealed proposals for general, heating, plumbing and ventilating and electrical contracts for the construction and erection of a township building to be used as a fire department building and located in the Village of Sheffield, Sheffield Township, Warren County, Pennsylvania.

All bids and proposals will be required to be accompanied by a bid bond or cashier's check in the amount of five percent (5 percent) of the bid to secure the execution of a contract by the successful bidder.

All proposals will firm for forty-five (45) days from date of bid opening.

The successful contractor will be required to furnish performance and materialman's bonds in the amount of the contract. The Supervisors reserve the right to reject any and all bids and to waive irregularities in the bidding.

Proposals should be addressed to the undersigned or to the Sheffield Township Supervisors in care of the Sheffield Township Municipal Authority, Sheffield, Pennsylvania. Kenneth Boardman, Secretary Sheffield, Pennsylvania June 26, 29, and July 3, 1967, 3t.
